SUNDAY; FROST FEARED

Clear skies and sunny weather Sunday were predicted today by the weatherman.

"The only threat of rain is in a storm that is heading south, away from here," he said. "As long as it holds its present course we'll have a nice week-end."

Temperatures will range between 44 and 58 degrees, he said, with a risk of light frost in low-lying areas.

444 DEAD—460 MISSING

New Typhoon Bears
Down on Philippines

MANILA, Oct. 25 (AP)—A new typhoon bore down on the Philippines today even before officials had finished counting the toll from the worst tropical storm in 50 years.

The count from Typhoon Trix, which hit southern Luzon Island Tuesday and Wednesday, reached 444 dead, 460 missing and 27 injured.

A Philippines Red Cross spokesman said the death toll might climb to 600 or more as late reports trickle in from isolated areas.

Woman Claims
Man Sought to Run Her Down

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 25 (BUP)—James King of Edmonton today was remanded until October 31 when he appeared in city police court on a charge of attempted murder.

Police said he tried to run over his former fiancée while driving a stolen car early today.

16 in B.C. Hold
Winning Tickets

Holder of a ticket drawn on a horse in the coming Irish sweep, Mrs. N. Daykin of Victoria said she "isn't the least excited."

The ticket was drawn on Mehmender, to run next Thursday in the Cambridgehire handicap at Newmarket, on which the sweep is based.

"It's the first time I've ever had any ticket drawn, although I have purchased tickets before," said Mrs. Daykin, housekeeper at the home of former Lieutenant-Governor C. A. Banks, 515 Foul Bay Road.

Two other Victorians, giving the noms de plume of "Klik" and "Heigh Ho Boys," have tickets on Codger and Adjourment respectively.

Total of 16 British Columbians have drawn tickets in the Irish sweep.

Of 180 Canadians holding tickets drawn from the big drum in Dublin, at least one, a resident of Toronto drew a ticket on the favorite, Cap of Gold.

Lost 18 Hours,
Deaf Child
Found Safe

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP)—A five-year-old deaf mute was found safe today after wandering 18 hours in bear-infested Muskoka district muskoka.

Patsy Temple, a ward of the Children's Aid Society, was found in the woods two miles from her home near this summer resort town.

Jim Johnson said he came upon the girl huddled against two rocks which partly shielded her from the cold.

About 125 police officers and neighbors spent most of the night looking for the girl.

When found, she was dressed in a short coat and overalls. It was 32 degrees above zero here Friday night.

Dies at Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 25 (CP)—Joseph Henry Harris, 63, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Toronto Danforth, died today. He had been in the Commons since 1921.

Russia Planned Korea
War in 1945—AchesonG.O.P. Makes War Top
Vote Issue

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (CP)—The Korean war and how to end it emerged today as the Republican's No. 1 election issue.

In a major speech in Detroit Friday night the party's presidential standard-bearer, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, promised to seek an "early and honorable end" to the costly conflict. He didn't say how he would achieve it. He promised only that he would go to Korea to attempt to find out.

For most of the half-hour address, Eisenhower lashed the Truman administration's "record of appalling failure" that he said led to the Korean war.

At Champaign, Ill., on Oct. 2, Eisenhower, in effect, suggested that if there must be war in Asia, let it be Asians against Asians. He proposed for the first time that South Koreans take over the defense of their country and that American troops be pulled back into reserve.

That "shocked" Stevenson, who three weeks later, also at Champaign, said that if the United States pulled out of Korea now, it would cost more money and more lives in the long run. And President Truman, campaigning vigorously on Stevenson's behalf, called upon Eisenhower to offer a concrete program to end the war.

The general's Detroit address Friday night was the answer. His theme was that the administration brought on the war by pulling American troops out of Korea in 1949 and "cannot be expected to repair what it failed to prevent."

His immediate program: Step up the program of training and arming the South Korean forces who "covet and deserve the honor of defending their frontiers." United Nations troops "manifestly" could not abandon Korea, but they would be held in reserve positions as assurance that "disaster would not strike again."

Mr. Mayhew is the first post-war ambassador to Japan. Arthur Menzies, a career diplomat, has been heading the Canadian mission to Japan.

McCarthy Will Give 'History' Of Stevenson

CHICAGO, Oct. 25 (AP)—Senator Joseph R. McCarthy said last night he will give a "carefully documented history" of Governor Adlai Stevenson during the last 17 years in a country-wide radio-TV broadcast Monday night.

"I'm simply going to show all the links in the chain of Stevenson's history—his connection with Communist causes—individuals who are known Communists," McCarthy told a press conference.

"I'm not calling him a Communist—not a pro-Communist," the Wisconsin Republican senator said. "I just intend to give his history and let the public decide whether we want him to lead the fight against Communism."

McCarthy said Friday he would ask the federal communications commission to revoke the license of Seattle television station KING Thursday night.

His scheduled 15-minute telecast in Seattle was cancelled when McCarthy refused to delete two paragraphs from his prepared text.

Otto Brandt, general manager of KING, said in Seattle the station had no alternative but to insist on the deletion, and said the action was supported by KING's Seattle and Washington, D.C., lawyers.

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP)—A leading British bet-taker today placed a 100-pound ($280) limit on bets on the U.S. presidential election following what he said was a "rush of wagers on Adlai Stevenson."

Douglas Stuart Ltd. said heavy betting on Stevenson in the past two days had made the odds the same for both candidates—four to five, take your pick.

Before Friday, a company spokesman said Gen. Eisenhower was an odds-on, four to five, favorite. He said the next 48 hours might bring another change in the odds.

Canada's New Ambassador
Home Today

Victoria's R. W. Mayhew, recently named Canadian ambassador to Japan, was due to arrive in the city this afternoon from Ottawa.

It is Mr. and Mrs. Mayhew's first visit home since the veteran parliamentarian's new appointment.

Mr. Mayhew, Liberal M.P. for Victoria since 1937 and fisheries minister since 1948, is expected to leave soon for his post in Japan. His appointment takes effect November 15.

Mr. Mayhew is the first post-war ambassador to Japan. Arthur Menzies, a career diplomat, has been heading the Canadian mission to Japan.

Civil Servants
Re-Elect Head

Carl Hauk of New Westminster was re-elected president of the B.C. Government Employees' Association at the organization's ninth annual convention at Empress Hotel today.

He was elected over W. F. Oliver of Victoria.

The convention instructed the bargaining committee to press the provincial government for three weeks' vacation with pay after three years, instead of the present 10.

Move was sought on grounds that other provincial governments grant the "privilege."

The association executive was instructed to urge the government to retain in the service female and male employees hired after they reach 40 in the case of women and 45, men.

Canada Backs Motion
Urging Reds Seek Peace

(From A.P. and U.P. Dispatches)

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 25—Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, accused Russia Friday night of deliberately planning and carrying on the Korean war. He warned United Nations delegates that the U.N. "cannot buy peace at the price of honor."

Acheson said Russia began preparing the North Koreans for war as early as 1945 and carried their preparations down through the provision of equipment the transfer of units from the Chinese Red Army and the attachment of military advisers, "beginning at the battalion level and including the general headquarters where the plans for the invasion of South Korea were worked out."

Speaking before the General Assembly's political committee, Acheson asked the 60-member assembly to approve the conduct of the U.N. war effort. He introduced a resolution—backed by 20 countries including Canada—urging the Communists to accept an armistice on the U.N. terms.

There was no contest in the general assembly which has duty of electing non-permanent council members and the three were elected on the first ballot. Colombia got 58 votes of a possible 60; Lebanon 58 and Denmark 56.

Detailed Review of Korean War

Acheson's long speech was a detailed review of the Korean war, all that led up to it, and the drawn-out attempts to end it.

The Secretary of State said the U.S. would do everything in its power to achieve an "honest armistice" if the Communists wanted one.

"But if this is not the case," he warned, "and if the resistance must go on, then we shall have to examine our position and our ability to carry that resistance forward."

Some delegations interpreted this as an indication that if the Communists turn down the armistice appeal, the U.S. may ask U.N. members for further military support and possibly reprisals against Communist China.

Acheson told the committee the U.S.—acting as the unified command for the U.N.—would never agree to the Communist demand that all prisoners be repatriated, regardless of their desires, and he made the following points:

1. If the Communists do not show "an honest desire" for a Korean armistice, "we must examine our positions and our ability to carry the resistance forward." This was taken as an indication that if the newest U.N. peace offer is rejected by the Communists, the U.S. will demand a more stringent military policy—with more help from more countries—from the U.N.

2. The U.N. has limited the conflict to Korea itself, "and it is the intention of the U.N. command to continue this limitation."

3. The U.S., as expressed in a resolution bearing the co-sponsorship of 20 other countries, favors an appeal to the Communists to settle for the non-forcible repatriation of prisoners.

4. "The U.N. has done all that is possible to try to bring about peace and the aggressor and those who support him have done nothing to bring about peace and everything to impede it."

The secretary ended, hoarse and fatigued, by calling attention to the sacrifices made by the United Nations and their troops fighting in Korea.

"Let no act of ours weaken or destroy the noble purpose of their sacrifice," he said. "This session of the General Assembly has the great responsibility of peace in Korea."

Acheson said the U.S. ambassador to Moscow approached the Russian foreign ministry to find out what the Russians had in mind regarding an armistice. He also mentioned making contacts here, but did not elaborate.

U.S. sources said, however, that American representatives in New York had seen Russian delegates two or three times in the last eight months in an attempt to find out whether an armistice could be reached.

These conversations were informal. The main purpose, it was said, was to give the Russians a full opportunity to say, if they wanted an armistice and on what terms. They never took the bait.

U.N. sources speculated that these contacts had been made between U.S. Ambassador Ernest Gross, United States deputy delegate to the U.N., and Jacob Malik, Soviet deputy foreign minister who made a radio speech June 23, 1951, which set off the armistice talks at Panmunjom.

The cause of the fire is undetermined.

SCENTED LETTER PUZZLE

Odors Send Office
Staff to Hospital

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 25 (AP)—The case of the "scented letter" puzzled doctors, police, and a public safety expert on poisons today.

Four life insurance company employees who were sent to hospital Friday, possibly as a result of handling the letter, were reported in satisfactory condition. All had suffered extreme nausea, headaches and pains in the back of their necks.

Dr. Walter C. Goddard, physician for International Life Insurance Co., sent A. L. Young, Peggy Dunkin, Mary Ann Norton and Muriel Blair to hospital.

Because the odor of the letter was so strong, Young had decided to dictate the letter to a stenographer and destroy the original, police said. While he was dictating, both he and the stenographer became nauseated and the illness spread to others in the office.

O. H. Howard, vice-president of the firm, said the letter was routine in nature and he had handled it himself without any ill effects.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

MARBLE ANGELS

MY WAY TO TOWN often takes me past Ross Bay cemetery, and as I journeyed along there the other day I mused that fashions in memorials and monuments have undergone the same radical change as many other customs and practices in this rapidly changing world.

Perhaps it was part of the pattern of social snobbery in the Victorian era to vie with the Joneses—that mythical family that provides the yardstick of snobbish success—in erecting costly and ornate sarcophagi, complete with weeping figures and classic urns, to the memory of the dear departed.

SIMPLE TREND

FOR THE LAST FEW decades the trend has been toward simple reminders. And the once spectacular vaults and flamboyant statues, many of them now mouldering under the impact of time and the elements, gave way to marble and granite tombstones which, in their turn, are being superseded by the inconspicuous markers that reduce all who have passed on to the one common level.

But old customs die hard with some people. That is why the lovely old town of Chichester, in Sussex, has been stirred recently over the problem of a marble angel. And anyone knowing Chichester as I do, with its exquisite old cathedral and its ornate tombs, its beautiful market cross and its ancient almshouses, may wonder why.

CEMETERY RULING

IT SEEMS THAT a local vicar objected when the parents of a nine-year-old girl who died wanted to erect a marble angel over her grave in Hurst Green cemetery. The aggrieved parents took the case to an ecclesiastical court, but there the Chancellor of the diocese upheld the vicar.

He told the child's parents that "the one thing you don't become when you die is an angel," and added that he banned the angel from the churchyard on the ground that it would be "rather primitive and misleading."

REBUKED BY OFFICIALS

CHURCH OF ENGLAND dignitaries promptly rebuked the Chancellor, saying he had exceeded his brief and launched off into theology. A spokesman for the church added the comment that the significance of angels is something that has occupied the minds of theologians for centuries, and the church view was that their use over graves as a representation of the after-life was, perhaps, primitive and misleading.

I have no desire—and certainly am not competent—to enter upon a theological controversy. But it seems slightly inconsistent to inculcate in children, through their hymns, a belief in the existence of angels and then to forbid sorrowing parents to memorialize their children with marble replicas.

IMPORTED TOMBSTONES BANNED

BUT TOMBSTONES seem to be a frequent source of worry to some British church authorities. Some time ago, I recall the Diocese of Canterbury insisting that all memorials must be made in Britain. Before imported tombstones can be erected, the case has to go before the Bishop's Court.

A church official explained that "these alien shiny polished white marble and black stone-enamelled memorials spoil British churchyards. It has been a scandal—artistically and industrially." From which last remark I assume the stonemasons are fully in accord with the edict.

HIS IDENTITY CARD

WHILE ON THE RATHER morbid subject of tombstones, I cannot refrain from recalling the somewhat macabre but amusing story that was going the rounds in England at the time when the national health scheme was getting under way. It alleged that a church sexton one night was confronted by a skeleton in a churchyard, inquiring where it could get free teeth under the health scheme.

The sexton gave the information. The next night he came upon the same skeleton wrenching a tombstone out of the ground. "They told me to come back with my identity card," it told the startled sexton.

BRITISH COLUMBIA DIVISION CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

The Medical Services Association incorporated under the Societies Act of British Columbia is an independent non-profit organization carrying on the functions of administration of a prepaid medical service plan. The Board of Directors, fully responsible for the management of M-S-A, is composed of eight directors elected openly at an Annual Meeting, four of whom are employee directors, two employer directors and two physician directors.

The British Columbia Division, Canadian Medical Association, is incorporated under the Societies Act of British Columbia and is governed by its officers and members of the Board elected in geographical constituencies throughout British Columbia.

It is desired to point out that these two bodies are independent of each other but that the success of the prepaid medical care plan depends upon their absolute co-operation.

The recent policy statement of the British Columbia Division, C.M.A., does not change the existing agreement with M-S-A. It does clarify two aspects of the patient-doctor-M-S-A relationship.

- It clarifies the protection which M-S-A and the doctor have from those few members who, because of the interpretation of the M-S-A Contract, request extra service which is over and above the requirements of good medical service, or engage the services of specialists without referral.
- The authority of the British Columbia Division, C.M.A., can now be used to protect the patient from requests for an extra account which was not previously clearly agreed to between him and his doctor.

★ There is no intention or desire on the part of the doctor in general practice to charge the patient extra for procedures covered under the M-S-A Service Contract. They will continue their participation in M-S-A as they have for the past 12 years.

★ The M-S-A Contract provides for specialist services when needed. It is intended that the attending doctor call in the specialist when necessary. In such cases, specialist care is paid for by M-S-A. However, when a patient goes directly to a specialist, M-S-A would pay the general practitioner fee. Any increased charge arranged by the patient and the specialist is the responsibility of the patient.

★ The British Columbia Division, C.M.A., has in operation a "Reference Committee," access to which will now be available to any M-S-A member in regard to a personal account from his doctor which is considered excessive.

CLARIFICATION OF M-S-A SERVICES:

★ Members of M-S-A and registered dependents shall be entitled to the following services.

- The necessary services of a general practitioner, who is a physician and surgeon licensed under the "Medical Act" of British Columbia, when required for preventive, diagnostic or therapeutic treatment and care, and the services of a specialist registered as such by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of British Columbia only when referred by the attending doctor. An increased charge by a specialist for a case not referred is the responsibility of the member.
- Necessary standardized laboratory services and diagnostic aids, including X-ray by a radiologist, when ordered by the attending physician and surgeon for non-hospitalized patients.
- You are advised, if you have not already done so, to select a doctor for your family in advance of illness or accident. You should make yourself known to him and identify yourself as a member of M-S-A. This is the normal and correct procedure for obtaining medical care and will assure you of the necessary attention in an emergency.
- For the few persons who, of their own volition, desire that their regular doctor provide extra service or attention, an agreement should be worked out between doctor and patient to this effect before the service is rendered. M-S-A is not liable for the fee that would be charged for this extra service. Any extra account sent by the doctor to the patient would state: "For procedure arranged with you outside the M-S-A Service Contract."

ALLIES RELEASE 2 WAR CRIMINALS

Max Wielen, Who Shared in Shooting
Of Canadian Fliers, Granted Freedom

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Oct. 25 (Reuters)—United States authorities today released war criminal Herman Giesler, 53, from Landsberg Prison, Bavaria, in continuation of the Allies' general amnesty policy.

Giesler had been condemned to life imprisonment in 1947 for participating in wartime atrocities at the Muehlhof concentration camp. Last year, his sentence was reduced first to 25 years and then to 12.

Giesler's release follows that of Max Wielen, a war criminal held by British authorities in Werl Prison, North Rhine-Westphalia. The ailing, 69-year-old German had been sentenced to life imprisonment in 1947 for taking part in the execution of 50 British and Commonwealth air force officers including six Canadians on Hitler's direct orders. The officers had been rounded up following a break from notorious Stalag Luft III at Sagan, Silesia, in 1944.

Wielen, head of the Breslau criminal police at the time, left prison Friday. His original sentence had been reduced first to 21 years and later to 15.

Witnesses at Wielen's trial in Hamburg five years ago testified that he and 17 other Germans murdered the 50 airmen on the way back to the camp after their capture. Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler had sent instructions that official reports should show the men were shot while trying to escape, the witnesses said.

HITLER WAS UPSET

Hitler was described as furious over the prison break, which tied up hundreds of thousands of troops and police for the manhunt.

Wielen was called to Berlin to face Hitler's wrath. There, Hitler, Field Marshal Wilhelm Von Goering and other war leaders engaged in mutual recriminations.

Hitler grew very excited, witnesses said, and ordered the men caught and shot immediately. When one general protested this would violate the Geneva convention, Chief of Staff Gen. Keitel retorted: "The time has come when an example must be shown or we cannot cope with the number of escapes."

Several Allied officers involved in the escape testified at the trial. Wing Cmdr. Henry Marshall of the R.A.F., who led the break, testified that no officers had given their word of honor not to escape. He said every officer was expected to try to escape.

Wielen told the court he had suffered "no pangs of conscience."

Masons Mourn Loss of Carson

St. Andrew's Lodge No. 49, A.F. and A.M., was in charge of funeral services Friday for Ernest Crawford Carson, 58-year-old veteran legislator who died suddenly Tuesday. Masonic pallbearers are pictured above taking casket from Christ Church Cathedral. Active pallbearers were W. T. Straith, Q.C.; H. C. Bell, E. Harwood, H. E. Alcock, Gordon Cameron and C. H. Orme.

Crowds Throng to Pay Leader Last Tribute

All Province
Mourns for
E. C. Carson

Christ Church Cathedral was filled to hear capacity Friday as more than 900 British Columbians paid their last respects to Ernest Crawford Carson, former public works minister and Progressive Conservative House leader, who died suddenly Tuesday.

Outside the cathedral a large crowd stood bareheaded in heart-felt tribute to the 58-year-old legislator who had won the respect of citizens from all walks of life.

The simple Anglican service, conducted by Dean P. R. Beattie and Archdeacon A. E. de L. Nunns, took less than half an hour. There were two congregational and choir hymns.

Steps of the cathedral were covered in floral tributes, many of the elaborate sprays and wreaths coming from scattered parts of British Columbia.

A guard of honor at the cathedral portals consisted of Premier W. A. C. Bennett, former premiers John Hays and Byron Johnson, former labor minister John Cates, former attorney-general Harry Pooley, Q.C., former finance minister Herbert Anscomb, Opposition Leader Harold Winch, and Major-General G. R. Pearce, V.C., M.P. for Nanaimo.

IN FULL REGALIA

More than 100 Masons in full regalia followed the casket into the cathedral.

St. John Ambulance Association, of which Mr. Carson had been a former president, also mounted a guard of honor.

Active pallbearers were W. T. Straith, Q.C.; H. C. Bell, E. Harwood, H. E. Alcock, Gordon Cameron and C. H. Orme.

Cremation followed the service and the ashes will be sent to Pavilion Mountain, Mr. Carson's home.

An impressive and lengthy Masonic service, conducted by St. Andrew's Lodge No. 49, A.F. and A.M., followed the church ceremony.

Friends and admirers from every corner of the province were at the funeral.

Home-Made Key Highlights Don Jail Inquiry

Crude Duplicate May Have Freed Boyd Gang

TORONTO, Oct. 25 (BUP)—Judge Ian MacDonnell was handed a home-made key Friday and without much difficulty used it to open the lock which had been on the door of the cell that once held bank robber Edwin Alonzo Boyd.

The judge, presiding over a royal commission into the Boyd gang escape from the Don Jail last month, had been told by Crown Counsel George Walsh that the makeshift key was "a dandy job."

The judge remarked that the key was a better job than keys locksmiths had made for him. He suggested that it would be impossible to make a satisfactory key unless you had the real one in your possession.

But Prisons Inspector Ralph Ayres said he had seen keys made in the past by the "feel and touch" method. He said that in the hospital section where the gang had been confined for a time there were many places where a piece of steel could be concealed without fear of detection.

A provincial inspector of prisons testified that about a month before the gang's escape he had found the cell grills open in a window, where the gang was confined. He realized that this was a breach of regulations but had not reported it.

Mr. Abbott Faces the Facts

TO THOSE WHO DEMAND drastic tax reductions Mr. Abbott's answer, delivered in Victoria yesterday, is candid and indisputable—if the Canadian people desire the present level of public services they must pay for it. And at the moment every dollar collected by the government is needed to pay for it. There is no surplus in the public treasury. The Conservative assumption that the government is collecting far more in taxes than it spends is a myth. Mr. Abbott will be satisfied, he says, if his budget comes out even at the end of the fiscal year next March.

This does not rule out tax reductions in the next budget, for in the calendar year of 1953 the production, and hence the tax yields of Canada, should continue to rise. If the government believes that the total wealth of the country will increase significantly in the immediate future it can assume an increase in revenue from present tax rates. Those rates then could be reduced and still provide enough to cover the present expenditures.

But obviously the possible increase in wealth cannot be large enough to justify any large tax cuts. When the Conservative party insists that taxes can be reduced wholesale it is ignoring the figures and acting with total irresponsibility which the public will resent, when it understands the figures.

The figures are simple. The government has to provide $2.1 billions for defense and few Canadians will think that is too much in a dangerous world.

It has to provide about $1 billion for social services—old age pensions, children's allowances, veterans pensions, unemployment insurance, health services and so on. How many Canadians wish to see these services curtailed? How many would cut veterans' pensions, or children's allowances or old age pensions? No Conservative so far as we know has suggested anything of the sort. Mr. Drew, on the contrary, proposes a vast increase in the cost of old age pensions by granting them at the age of 65.

The government must pay $440 millions in interest on the public debt. That figure is fixed and inflexible, since the government cannot repudiate its debt to its bondholders.

Next, $300 millions must be found for subsidies to the provinces, none of which, as Mr. Abbott remarks, have suggested that they are getting too much and some of which seem to think they are not getting enough.

When these items are added up only $670 millions is left out of a total budget of $4.5 billions to provide all the ordinary services of government. This is a large amount, more than our total budget before the war. No doubt there is room for economy in this field, though the opposition has been unable or unwilling so far to propose any significant economies.

The running costs of government, however, are smaller in proportion to our national ability to pay them than they were five years ago. In 1947 they represented 4.5 per cent of the nation's production. This year they represent 3 per cent. This is remarkable when the cost of government, like the cost of everything else, has risen in the years of inflation. The government, in other words, has not raised its expenditures anything like as rapidly as the rise in the prices it must pay.

Mr. Abbott's analysis of our national economy and the problem of prices will be discussed here later. Meanwhile it can be said that his speeches in Vancouver and Victoria have demolished the theory of a huge, unnecessary surplus in the treasury, they have faced the facts of our financial position, they have refused to offer any easy sops to the public for political purposes, and they have marked Mr. Abbott as an honest treasurer. Canada is fortunate to have in the treasury at this time a man who tells the people the truth.

'Look Out for My Nylons'

WHETHER THE BRITISH Columbia Progressive Conservative Association had its eye on the neatly turned ankle that walks into the polling booth, or whether it was looking at the subject in broader perspective, it has roused discussion by its nylon hose resolution.

The association has asked the federal government to investigate the hosiery industry to see if there is justification for the belief that the industry is turning out an inferior nylon stocking to boost sales and profits.

Doubts exist in milady's mind. When nylon hose first came out, they seemed to last longer—undoubtedly did last longer. But the question arises: Was the longevity of hose determined by the care it was given by the purchaser when the product was scarce and expensive, or was long life attributable to better quality and workmanship in manufacture?

The clumsy male, dapping with the bright young thing a decade ago, was warned to "watch out for my nylons" in notes of anxiety that aren't heard today. Nylons, it appears, are just stockings now. They can, on occasions, be purchased for half the price of the originals. Many have attained a sheerness that makes the former product look like lisle. Greater delicacy in texture may have reduced strength.

On the other hand, the nylon stocking may have gone the way of the old model car's fender. At one time fenders were made of substantial metal, withstood some bumping and could be restored even when dented. Today the fender will not stand up to robust treatment.

Nylon manufacturers have not been found guilty of wilfully turning out a substandard product. They are, nevertheless, in the position of an accused who has been charged. Without an investigation, they'll remain under a cloud. An inquiry could adduce the evidence necessary to prove the case one way or another. It would not convince those who will not be convinced. But it seems necessary now if doubts are to be allayed in the minds of reasonable people.

Lure of Native Waters Brings Cohos Home As Some Fall Prey to Hazards of Travel

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL, Director, Provincial Museum

AFTER a short period of slack water the tide once again begins its sweep westward toward the open sea carrying with it a taste of Cowichan River water. The late-arriving stragglers of the migrating coho pick up the scent and move in small groups into the ebbing tide, their snouts pointed toward the origin of the odor which stirs the forces within them. As they round one of the several rocky promontories which form the southern tip of Vancouver Island their attention is attracted by a series of glinting shapes moving steadily through the greenish water.

Carl

The fish make several exploratory turns by these objects noting that each seems to be joined by an arching line to another shape moving through the silvery ceiling which marks the upper limit of their world. They do not shy away from the churning propellers and rhythmic pound of engines, sights and sounds which have become commonplace during their passage along the coast.

Nearer the kelp line another object diverts their attention—a spindly form rapidly swimming just below the surface in a swirl of silvery bubbles. From below it appears light-colored against the shimmering skylight; from the side the coating of bubbles flashes white and green.

One coho, perhaps in a bolder mood than the others, snatches the tempting morsel. As he turns from the strike the prick of the hook concealed in the coarse hair of the artificial fly causes the fish to leap clear of the water in an effort to dislodge the lure.

Unsuccessful in this he rushes off at top speed but is forced to turn in a wide arc by reason of the tension on the angle of his jaw. After several such manoeuvres he rests momentarily on his side but before he has recovered a net dips through the silvery screen and removes him from the picture.

The remaining fish, unperturbed by these events, continue to swim against the running tide. Rounding a rocky point they enter water moving in their direction of travel, a back eddy created by the promontory.

Close to the rock bottom a dim shape moves along with up and down undulations of the tail end. As it rises toward the light the shape resolves itself into that of a harbor seal. Its large eyes in a dog-like head search the rock face for lingo or rockfish; its mottled coat of hair lies flat against its hide as if it were painted on.

The seal extends its flippers to make

LOOSE ENDS

Autumn Madness

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

A GENTLEMAN who should know has undertaken, in The Winnipeg Free Press, to strip the false haze from autumn. It's about time. For several centuries at least poets have been celebrating the golden glory of this season, the Shellys have addressed verse to the Wild West Wind (from the interior of a snug house) and the Keats' have been so full of mellow fruitfulness, so drowsed with the fume of poppies that it hurts, that is to say, the man who really has to face autumn in the flesh. This is not the season of poetry for the real autumn man. It is the season of toil when all the debts contracted in the spring must be paid on the line. And in paying them the country dweller invariably goes bankrupt because he is too rich.

LUNACY IN SPRING

This annual madness begins early in the year when the first seed catalogues arrive with their brightly-colored messages of lunacy. The poor dupes of the seed companies immediately rush out and plant too much and thus the embarrassment of autumn riches is under way.

The trouble with seeds is that they grow, that corn, tomatoes, pumpkins and the rest are not content to spread their bodies across the earth but insist on bearing young.

By this season the gardener is drowned in his harvest and at the very moment when he should deserve some rest from his labors is the slave of fertility and conscience.

For, of course, if he is worthy of his craft, if he has a decent respect for the earth and a proper hatred of waste in a hungry world, he is bound to use his crops somehow. He cannot possibly eat them—a common fallacy among statesmen, who would dam up this nation's International trade and force Canadians to consume a dozen loaves of bread and several steers every day, which is not healthy. The gardener's superfluity, therefore, must be disposed of among his city friends.

This is not as easy as it looks. The city friends are always hungry but not hungry enough to do anything about it. They will accept your gifts of plums and pears if you bring them properly wrapped and graded, not to the front door but to the back. They will accept them under protest (sure that they could buy better at the corner store) and even perhaps, if they are well-mannered, will even utter some perfunctory word of thanks, hoping that you will go away quickly and not return again.

WHERE PLUMS LIE

But no countryman in his senses ever expects a city friend to accept the usual empty invitation, to come out and harvest his own fruit.

From where I sit at this moment I can see something like a ton of luscious blue plums rotting on the ground from which no one would pick them up. Had I been in these parts when they ripened no doubt I would have exhausted myself in picking them and peddling them deferentially and freely from door to door in unfair competition with the commercial growers.

Mercifully I was away at that time (having told my friends to come out and help themselves) and, as I expected, the plums fell and all the orchard's labors of pruning, spraying and cultivating were also wasted.

Now the apples begin to fall, the squash lie naked, swollen and obscene among their frozen vines, the red faces of the tomatoes cry out to be eaten or canned and still the largest crop of all, the autumn avalanche of oak leaves, yet to fall and complete the engulfment.

In a weak moment I may have written some foolish lines about autumn. For lack of common honesty I may do so again. Don't let this or theulations of better writers fool you. Autumn may be a time of rest in the city, rest from the amusements of summer. For anyone who owns an acre of land, or even a good-sized lot, it is the climax of the year's labor, it is a horror of glut and waste, it is the punishment of last spring's folly.

And when a man finds an empty bird's nest in his orchard he realizes the meaning of this melancholy symbol—all the birds having flown, the feathered and the human, like King Midas, with his barren treasure. Yet he will do the same thing again next spring and find himself entrapped in another autumn, if he lasts that long.

Booming Ground, Chemainus.

—Mrs. Nicholas Morant.

Mr. Peeps' Diary

Being A Chronicle Of Our Times

MONDAY, 20th—Comes to me in the mayles this day a fervent dispatch which says that when we give children the meat of animals to eat, it produces "the nasty and quarrelsome nature of the ferocious beast;" and therefore, if we want to stop wars, we should first lay off eating meat. And would I, pray, make a submission to the United Nations to this effect? Of course. This night I put an end to "The Troubled Air," by Master Irwin Shaw, a most racy and provocative novel concerning bigotry, which left me in a high state of confusion.

TUESDAY, 21st—This morning I was saluted by my boy and girl, with a statement and a question: "I'm throwing up" and "Does my face look thinner with my hair cut?" A noble fashion which I start the day. At lunch, I discoursed of the U.S. election with Master Frederick Hinkle, but we knew not how to sift the posture of this business, it being mighty tight. By and by Master Penzer made my hair fine with a trimme, in the doing of which he discoursed of trimming the heads of royalty, six in number, and remarked that the late Duke of Kent was most amiable, and Edinburgh most knowing in the arts and sciences. In the gardens of the hotel I came upon Mr. Premier, Master Tom Chester and Cmdr. Theodore Watt, and chivvied the Premier for not attending on Master Abbott this week, to which he replied his government had not been saluted, and knew not of this great event. So away by coach to collect some gettings for the Community Chest from Master Dalziel, and was greeted by a very pretty girl with a very black eye, demm'd intriguing. Anon home, where Master Wong sold me a ticket to a showing of Chinese magic, in aid of his church; and put away some garden furniture for the winter. So to Master Carrie Nation's to salute Master George Hodgson, a renowned athlete and business man from abroad; and much admired the original paintings of Masters Gagnon, Morrice, and Campbell Tinning. Thus lately away to shake the hand of Masters George Whitaker, Allyn Taylor and Morley Aylsworth, gentlemen of affairs; and to toy with 13 dishes of Chinese food with Master and Mistress Max Young, Master and Mistress Bim Simons. Up betimes and away, to observe the antics of a dog named Sime, the only one in this city capable of answering a telephone. Anon home, and on my door was posted a shattering message: my friend Ernest Carson, the best they make, this evening had died in his garden.

WEDNESDAY, 22nd—To the theatre, and saw a most wonderful play: "The Quiet Man," infinite full of lulling music, lush verdure, and splendid acting; in particular, by Master Barry Fitzgerald. I learned this day that my friend Pierre Berton is the father of a baby girl, his third in a row.

THURSDAY, 23rd—Comes to me this day two merchants of this city, to discourse of a proposal wherein all trade would be suspended another day each week, a most arrant foolish business. A point documented by another source at lunch, whereat Prof. Geoffrey Andrew spoke most sensibly about Canada's dependence on international trade; her need for taxes to defend her stake and assist less fortunate peoples. By and by through the streets to Master Walter Fletcher's, to acquire some ducats for the Rotary vaudeville show, demm'd fetching, and to look at an ingenious device for the prolongation of recorded discs of music. Anon home for a tub, and clean shirtings, and away to St. Mary's Church, where I sat me down with Masters MacKay, Cullis, Nation, Hayward, Booth, Dean Philip Beattie and many more excellent ladies and gentlemen, and we were mightily genially merry together. I chatted betimes with Archdeacon Nunns, a true father of his flock, and he told me in my ear a stunning confession: he was the only Irishman at large who'd never visited Killarney. A shameful secret, but I promised not to tell. So in good company home, and to bed.

FRIDAY, 24th—This afternoon, sitting with a great press of citizens in the Cathedral, came thoughts of a brave morning when this noble man, Ernest Carson, was standing on the observation platform of a P.G.E. train, winding through the farms and valleys of the lower Cariboo. And, as his figure was detected by divers farmers, their wives and children in the fields, they stopped in their travail and waved to him, and called him by name; as he did to them. And so they might have been this day, far from this church: turning their rich soil, working quietly, and reflecting on their friend, who had died in his garden in the city, with his hob-nailed boots on his feet.

Opinions Of Our Correspondents

H-M-M-M!

I was more than surprised to read Dr. C. Carl's statement in your paper re "Caddy."

On two occasions, while fishing, my brother and I have seen Caddy, and in no way did it resemble a walrus, sea lion or even a wassit. We all know there are stranger things in the sea than have ever been caught.

On one of my early sailing voyages we were anchored in the Red Sea. Upon cat heading the anchor we found caught on the fluke one of the wheels of Pharaoh's chariot.

On another trip, homeward bound from Baltic ports with lumber, the look-out reported a strange object a little ahead and off the port bow. It was a snake-like creature, fully a quarter of a mile long, with a blue back and creamy underbody. It must have been asleep when the surging of our ship wakened it. It headed across our bow but was a little too late for we cut it in two. The halves washed along our sides. So we ran aft and saw the severed ends meet and join again. Then it headed away in a slow, undulating motion as if nothing had happened.

Later on our captain told us it was a "mitch" and they were used for bait in the Arctic Ocean to catch the "wampus," a fish weighing anywhere from 100 to 800 tons. They are very fine eating. If the tuna is the chicken of the sea, the wampus is the turkey of the sea.

Capt. Morgan was not on our ship on any of these trips.

ERNEST P. BURCH.

MORALS AND BOOKS

I agree with Mr. Abraham in his opinion expressed in The Times (October 14) that it is high time decent people did something about the filthy literature being displayed and sold on our newsstands.

If this situation is allowed to continue who can honestly say that the adults today are carrying out their serious responsibility toward the youth of today? Youthful minds are curious. Sexy literature and pictures satisfy this natural curiosity. And printed filth lowers the ideals and standards of our youth by influencing their thoughts, their language and their actions in a way that would perhaps frighten many of the parents of today.

A small group of publishers and distributors are responsible for this menace. They are among the worst criminals of our time. The decent people must unite and become militant to protect themselves and their children from these criminals. And when this is done, let us have plenty of the wholesome literature available at a moderate cost, in order that our youth may profit from their reading during leisure time.

The October issue of the Readers' Digest (Page 138) contains an article dealing with this same problem. Entitled "Filth on the Newsstands," it tells of the protests and campaigns organized in Canada and the U.S.A. to rid the newsstands of harmful literature.

BOOKS AND MORALS

I have just seen a letter purporting to be the composition of a Mr. E. W. Abraham, who seems to have a desire to work a reformation in our modern literature in regards to morals. Well,

Sloppy Lippage

Peterborough Examiner

Mr. Pearson, minister of external affairs, has returned from Europe with a piece of language which should have been nabbed by a censor at the port of entry.

At an Ottawa press conference on the recent North Atlantic Treaty Council meeting in Paris, he said that N.A.T.O. expected a slight "slippage" on its 1952 military objectives. The word was not a slip of the tongue; it was deliberately slipped into his report. We know and use slipper, slippish, slippage, slippery and even slippy (we might say that Mr. Pearson was slippy in using slippage); and now we have to know slippage—but God forbid that we ever use it or hear it again.

Mr. Pearson quipped that slippage was conceived in the Pentagon and born in Paris. That is no reason for Mr. Pearson's fondling the international bastard and bringing it back home. We have enough official, almost legitimate jargon now: Check (double, triple), target (N.A.T.O. national, charity), joint (commission, planning, discussion), expedite (plans), gap (dollar), implement (the Colombo Plan), level (policy, local, national). Let us liquidate slippage soonest.

If he is honest in his desire let him start at the worst case first.

Anyone who dared to publish in another book some of the stuff that is in the Bible would run a good chance of landing in prison, and yet there are those whose minds are so perverted that they wish innocent children to be taught from that source. Another thing, anyone who was stupid enough to publish in any other book the unscientific nonsense that is in the Bible would be liable to finish up in a mental hospital.

There is a gulf between science on the one hand and the Bible and religion on the other that never can be bridged.

If Mr. Abraham is in earnest he will subject the Bible as far as morality is concerned to the same criticism as any other book.

LABOR UNIONS

Listening in on the radio recently to the First United Church broadcast, the Rev. M. J. Waters officiating, I noted some disparaging remarks regarding labor unions. As one who has had over forty years activity in such organizations, I consider it pertinent to make some observations on the attitude taken on such matters.

The position expressed seems to be consistent with a recent trend on the part of such people to criticize the procedure adopted by labor unions in their efforts to improve the working conditions of the workers.

The reference made in this particular case implies that unions are being dictated to by higher ups and as such is an entirely unwarranted statement, alien to the facts, and indicates a crass ignorance of the objects and organizational structure of labor unions.

Had he before making such a statement, been sufficiently interested in making a study of the constitution and by-laws of the average union, he would have found that they are more governed by democratic process than most other bodies, including the church itself.

The dictatorship alleged to exist has less chance to develop by reason of the fact that the officials and the constitution and by-laws setting forth the process by which the organization is governed, are the democratic choice by the membership. It is only when outsiders proceed to interfere with the internal affairs of unions that the menace of dictatorship appears to be a possibility.

For four years prior to his moving to Vancouver as Assistant General Manager he was District Manager of the Prairie Division of McGavin's.

Junior Salesman Has Hospital as His Beat

Anthony Southwell is a happy, freckled-face boy of 12 who brightens up the sometimes cheerless days of patients at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Tony, picked as the Time junior salesman of the week, has the hospital as his "beat." And since the patients can't very well come to him, he goes to them.

With blond hair, crew-cut, and a big, happy grin, he's made countless friends during the three-and-a-half months he's been tip-toeing up and down the long corridors.

The route takes about three-quarters of an hour to cover if he hurries, but Tony seldom does. "Usually the patients like to chat or kid me, and I like talking to them," he says.

Quite often, patients without regular visitors, will ask Tony to run errands for them, shop for them, or deliver messages. Some of the patients Tony has as customers were in hospital when he first took on the hospital job after two and a half years with his own urban delivery route, but most of the patients change regularly so that Tony is continually making new friends.

Often, he meets old patients on the street who greet him with a big hello. That's a challenge to Tony's memory because people look a lot different all dressed up.

Tony sells between 50 and 60 papers a day. He calls in every room except those in the maternity wing and those in which people are very sick and visitors are not allowed.

A Grade 8 student at St. Louis College, Tony lives at 1152 Burdett Avenue.

CONFIDENT

World Going Ahead Claim Of Students

BY DINAH KERR

Times College Reporter

The fact that students at Victoria College view the future with confidence was evident at the presentation on Wednesday of the first Public Forum.

Discussing the topic "Is Civilization Progressive or Retrogressive" were speakers Pam Temple, Ken Kalutich, Walt Young and Gwen Bavin.

Walt Young, contending that civilization is advancing, argued accepted ideas are we able to progress. "It is like making a cup of cocoa," he said. "A good stirring around is needed to create a smooth solution."

Later the meeting was thrown open for questions and comments from the student audience. Although some telling points were made, it was obvious that the forum closed on a note of optimism. Chairman was Stuart Beaveridge.

FARM and RANCH

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The increasing interest of the younger generation of British Columbia is taking in agriculture is shown by figures released by Miss Echo Lidster, supervisor of 4-H clubs in the province.

Club membership in British Columbia increased by 200, bringing this year's total membership to 1,589.

Dairy calf clubs still lead in popularity, with 69 operating throughout the province, according to Miss Lidster. These clubs have a total enrollment of 583 at the present time. Next in numbers are the beef calf clubs with 18, followed by 16 clothing and 13 poultry clubs. Others are garden, nine; swine, nine; potato, eight; tractor, two; sheep and grain one each.

In Saanich there are two calf clubs under the group leadership of Alex Hall, B.C. Electric Co. farm expert, and Bob Godfrey, Saanich. J. D. Hazlett, district agriculturist for south Vancouver Island, and Jim Ryder of Victoria, assist the clubs.

The growing interest that young people are taking in farm clubs is largely due to the encouragement they are receiving from the provincial department of agriculture, business and individuals. Plenty of competitions are arranged for the juniors throughout the year. Those who receive the highest honors in the province usually get a free trip to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

District agriculturists of the lower Mainland and Vancouver met in Victoria this week for a two-day regional conference.

The eight-man group met under the direction of supervising agriculturist, J. S. Allin of Victoria. Under discussion were matters affecting future Extension Branch policies and programs, with particular emphasis upon the short course arrangements for the coming winter season.

Improved conditions for poultry and egg producers are forecast by C. A. Walls, manager of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture, who addressed recently the South Vancouver Island Poultry Association.

Mr. Walls called for a closer understanding of relationships between producers and consumers.

If you are planning to plant some holly trees this fall it would be wise to consult first the Federal Experimental Farm at Saanichton or the Vancouver Island Holly Growers Co-Operative Association.

There is a lot to know about the choice of trees. On the market there are at least 20 types of holly trees and some of these are poor croppers and are a waste of time growing.

Canadian Troops Draw Jail Terms for Riot

HOHNE, Germany, Oct. 25 (Reuters) — A Canadian soldier today was ordered dismissed from the army and three others were given jail sentences of up to 18 months for their part in wrecking a German hotel at near by Bergen September 30.

They were said to be the ring leaders of a group of about 27 soldiers of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade who beat up a party of young Germans in the hotel, breaking windows, bottles, furniture and a piano in the process.

All four were troopers of the Royal Canadian Dragoons. Tpr. Henry Clarence Jobson, 19, of Elk Lake, Ont., was sentenced to 18 months' hard labor and dismissed from the army.

Tprs. Evan Ernest Bryans, 22, of Lindsay, Ont., and Joseph Jeanroy Riendau, 19, of Montreal, were given 18-month, hard-labor terms. Tpr. B. A. McPhee, 20, of Kirkland Lake, Ont., was sentenced to four months detention.

The first three were found guilty by a court martial of leading the attack. McPhee was found guilty of taking part. Brig. Geoffrey Walsh, com-

P.V. HARDBOARD NOW WEATHERPROOF

For indoor or outdoor use

After successfully withstanding exposure tests extending over many years, P.V. Hardboard is now recommended for exterior as well as interior use, and re-named P.V. Weatherproof Hardboard. To the outdoor field it brings all the qualities for which it is noted—remarkable strength and rigidity, through-panel toughness, smooth-as-glass painting surface—at a cost substantially below other siding materials. You save, too, in labour costs because the large 4'x8' panels speed the job. You can use P.V. Weatherproof Hardboard as an attractive drop siding for homes, as sidewalls for garages, warehouses, farm buildings, or for outdoor signs. See your lumber dealer today.

Vancouver noon closing came after a quiet session. Estella climbed to 36, up .04; Quatsino is up .01 to 38. Silver Standard is at 1.35, up .10.

Oils showed Calvan Oil at $5.65, up .10, while United Oil is unchanged at $4.55. New Continental is off .04 to $1.58 and York Oil remains at 34, unchanged.

Canadian Western Lumber is unchanged at $8.00.

Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 25 (CP)—Prices continued mixed Friday in slow trading toward the stock market's close.

Trading continued slow and volume for the session was expected to reach about 1,500,000 shares.

Strength in foods and manufacturing companies bolstered the industrial section and papers, miscellaneous issues and retail stores also showed strength. Steels and refining oils slipped.

Western oils gains ranged to 50 cents as the section advanced. Leaders were Canada Southern, Britisha and Pacific.

Montreal

MONTREAL, Oct. 25 (CP)—The stock exchange and curb market continued to show a quiet and mixed tone late Friday.

Price changes, about evenly divided between gains and losses, were held to a narrow fractional groove. Wider movements included Aluminum, up 1 1/2 points to 48 1/2 and Trans-Mountain Pipe Line up one at 28.

Carriers continued firmer and were joined by papers and miscellaneous industrials. Utilities, senior oils and steels showed more declines than advances. Senior metals and beverages were irregular while banks were active but unchanged.

New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (AP)—Automobile issues started a rally Friday in the stock market.

Most gains were fractional, but they went on up to around two points.

Volume came to an estimated 1,100,000 shares.

Oils displayed substantial plus signs, and there was liberal help for the advance from steels, rails, chemicals, building material issues and some aircrafts.

Texas Co. on an increased regular dividend spurred ahead with a gain of around two points at times.

Stocks advancing included General Motors, Republics Steel, Santa Fe, Sinclair Oil, Air Re, ducta, and Boeing.

Livestock

CALGARY, Oct. 25 (CP)—Trading was fairly active and prices generally steady on the Calgary livestock market Friday. Bulk of the 1,650 cattle and calves on offer were stocker and feeder cattle, cows and calves. No strictly choice butcher heifers were available.

Eligible butcher steers were steady, light butcher steers fully steady to strong. Butcher heifers were steady. Cows were about steady, heavy fat cows selling in line with common and canners at $8.75 to $10.25. Bulls were steady to 50 cents higher. Good stocker and feeder steers were firm, plainer kinds selling over a wide range. Veal calves were steady, good type steer and heifer calves going as feeders up to $21.75.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Oct. 25 (CP)—Prices continued to move narrowly in dull trade Friday at mid-session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Flax displayed the weakest tone.

Pretty Mermaids... All in a Row

This bevy of young aquatic beauties took part in Friday night's Elementary School swimming gala at the Crystal Garden. Unfortunately, however, like all mermaids, they were extremely shy and disappeared from sight, before they could be identified, frightened no doubt by the flash of Times photographer Bill Halkett's camera. That is Hal-kett's explanation as to why their identity must forever remain a mystery. Lampson Street and Sir James Douglas School captured the featured aggregate awards.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

END OF THE WEEK—and baseball rabbit-ball bounces its way back into the news. . . Edmonton and Calgary are the newest members of the Western International League, a prophecy made last year, coming true.

The dream was fostered by Victoria's Reg Patterson and Vancouver's Bob Brown as the forerunner to an international eight-team league comprising four Canadian and four American cities.

It appears obvious that this will be the eventual result, Tri-City and Wenatchee barely hanging on the ropes after last year's disastrous season. Salem and Lewiston hanging by an eyelash on the fringes of the far-flung circuit.

If the truth were known, it could probably be said that the Victoria Tyees, though still with accrued debts of previous seasons hanging over the fortunes, fared as well, if not better, financially than any other W.I.L. team last year.

Spokane is reported to have dropped a bundle approximating $20,000. Vancouver finished in the red as did the smaller whistle stops along the route.

Looking to the future it would seem that Spokane and Yakima appear the best bets to stay in business, with the possibility of Tacoma being re-admitted to the league drawing favorable reaction.

Split Season Draws Favorable Reaction

It's 30 long years ago since Calgary and Edmonton were in the professional end of baseball, but out of that old Western Canada League came some great figures in the sport.

The late Joe Devine, chief west coast scout for the New York Yankees until his untimely death this year, managed the Calgary club. There were also such famous figures as "Babe" Herman, Jack Fournier, Heinie Manush and National League umpire "Beans" Reardon. That's where Reardon got his start. Those and many more.

The split season as proposed by league president Robert Abel has the backing of venerable Bob Brown and Patterson. Others will probably follow suit as the unwieldy 10-team circuit could easily run out of customer appeal if a situation like last year, when the Tyees ran away and hid from the other clubs, occurred.

In respect to the actual additional traveling costs to the prairie centers, Patterson points out that it cost the Tyees $500-$600 to travel to Lewiston last season while the junket to the Alberta towns would be approximately $900. "I think the potential power of Edmonton and Calgary would more than take care of the extra expense involved," Patterson asserted. Two trips would be made by each club, Patterson says.

Prairies Take Place in Western Sport

The league will also be striving for a balanced schedule, which seems to preclude the possibility of a two-section league—Canadian and American—with an interlocking schedule as is in effect in the Western Hockey League, but also a possibility that no doubt will be aired.

News that Calgary and Edmonton has been accepted in the league was greeted enthusiastically by baseball men there, though naturally both interests must enter the race for players from a standing start. The general theme is that both centres will attempt to line up a working agreement with preferably a major league club, their first objectives being that, by now, famous expression, "a name player" as manager. Neither, naturally have any solid contacts at the moment, but it's as certain as fate that the prairies are once again a prime factor in western sport.

Off the cuff, Patterson admits that Cec Garriott hasn't yet been offered a contract for next year, but that talks along that line will be held at the annual meeting of the National Association of Minor Professional Baseball Leagues at Phoenix, Dec. 1.

Incidentally, nothing ever developed from the deal whereby Jim Clark, Bob Moniz and Ben Lorino were sent to Portland for a "look-see" trial. The trio, like other members of the Tyees now are eligible for the baseball draft, out of which the Tyees could realize financial recompense which would see them "over the top" on last year's operations.

Vic High Booters in Prep Victory

Victoria High School trounced Esquimalt High 5-2 to move into second place in the Inter-High School Senior Soccer League at Victoria High, on Friday.

The Fernwood Street hosts surged into a 3-0 half-time lead and matched goals with the losers in the final half of a sluggish game.

Playing on a heavy pitch, teams found it next to impossible to play good soccer. Bill Abbott scored a hat-trick for the winners with right-winger Ted Harrison and inside-left Noel Boston netting the others.

Bill Hussey scored both Esquimalt goals.

SKI TOW NEXT OBJECTIVE OF SNOWBIRD CLUB

A ski tow for the coming season is a good possibility for members of the Victoria Snowbird Ski Club on the slopes of Mount Brenton, near Nanaimo.

Discussion on this project by the two-year-old club will be the main topic when members meet Oct. 29 in the Newstead Hall, Fort Street, to further plans for the 1952-53 season.

Members have been hard at it week-ends to complete the club's lodge at the ski grounds, Frank Porter reports that at the present rate of progress the rustic lodge will be completed in plenty of time for the opening of the skiing season. The skiers expect suitable snow for hickory boards early in December.

Interest in the club has soared since the Brenton grounds were discovered. Officials expect well over 300 members before the end of the season and propose to have competition there with Forbidden Plateau members.

Four Games on Saanich Cage Bill

Four Saanich and Suburban Basketball League games are scheduled for the Saanich Agricultural Hall tonight starting at 7.

Sooke and Saanichton boys open the card with a Biddy League game, followed by a bantam boys game between the same two centres.

Saanichton and Brentwood furnish the opposition in the third game, a juvenile girls' fixture, and Sooke and Saanichton senior men bring down the curtain.

Canucks Add to Lead As Bombers Gain Tie

VANCOUVER, Oct. 25 (CP)—Ted Lebedia drilled a 20-footer past Emile Francis half way through the final period to give the Seattle Bombers a 3-3 sawoff with Vancouver Canucks in a Western Hockey League game here.

The draw increased Vancouver's lead atop the league to two points over Saskatoon and three over Calgary and Victoria.

The Bombers came from behind three times for the tie. Vancouver got the only goal of the first period and each team sank two in the second.

Ted Powers, Ray Manson and Walt Atanas, tallied for the Canucks, in that order. Gerry Foley and Lorne Nadeau got Seattle's first and second goals.

GETS PAY HIKE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25 (AP)—Directors of the Pacific Coast Baseball League voted confidence in president Clarence Rowland Friday by extending his contract at $17,500 a year through 1957.

ON THE ALLEYS

Of all bowlers in the city, Dick Bowles was perhaps the most unfortunate of the lot Wednesday night.

Dick went into his Commercial Tenpin League action Wednesday with two records hanging from his belt—the high three for the season of 621 and the high single of 247, and came out the holder of neither.

George Harknett Sr. stole one-half of the show as he recorded the new high three of 636.

Close behind came Ian McKeachie who set the new single record with a 258. McKeachie ended the evening with a three-game total of 630.

Other regulars to attain the 600 mark were: Ray Sparkes, 612; K. Munn, 607, and B. Templeton, 601.

Team high three for the week went to Chevrons with 2,967, closely followed by Murdoch and Girard who scored only two pins less with 2,965.

Leading the average parade with a lofty 189 is F. Welsh, while R. Chapman holds down second position with 185. Other leaders are Bowles 183, H. Bryan 183, Bill Coats 182 and Red Lawson 180.

In the senior tenpin circuit Jack Howell holds the honors with a 187 average while Bill Holness and Andy Palmer are in a tie for second place with 184.

Jack Hall holds high single this season of 242.

High single and high three in the team events go to Torgery Shop with a 922 singleton and 2,856 three.

In the five-pin classics, nine bowlers have bettered the 400 mark at Capital City Bowldrome. Bill McKinnon is high with 440. Others include Joe LaBrie, 434; Wilf Smith, 420; John Cool, 410; Vic Citra, 409; Dave McColl, 408; Mary Chayko, 403; Bud Baldwin, 402, and Dick Jewsbury with 402 and 401.

TIMES CUP TO SIR JAMES DOUGLAS

Lampson Street Gala Champions

Lampson Street School, defending champions of the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club Trophy for Grades 1 to 8 aggregate, retained the silverware in the elementary schools swimming gala at the Crystal Garden Friday night.

Sir James Douglas School captured the Times Trophy for Grades 1 to 6 aggregate.

A full house of screaming students and thrilled parents saw Lampson Street wage a terrific battle with Oak Bay, edging the Boys 14 points to 12.

The winner was not decided until the final relay with the Lampson Street crew taking the boys' 200 yard relay for Grades 7 and 8, and finishing third behind Oak Bay and South Park in the girls' 200-yard relay for Grades 7 and 8.

Lampson's winning team in the boys' relay and Oak Bay's team in the girls' relay will compete in the inter-high school gala next Wednesday for the Canadian Legion and Penderay Cups respectively.

RELAY WINNERS

Sir James Douglas captured the Hibberson Trophy as its boys' relay team for Grades 1 to 6 edged out South Park.

St. Margaret's beat out Monterey in the girls' relay for Grades 1 to 6 to take the other Hibberson Trophy.

Results follow:

50-yard freestyle, boys under 13-1: Douglas (Sir James Douglas), 2. Malcolm Byrnie (Esquimalt).

50-yard freestyle, girls under 12-1: Judy Margaret (St. Margaret's), 2. Judy Pope (Monterey), 3. Marilyn Robertson (Royal Oak).

50-yard freestyle, boys under 14-1: Rowan Edie (MacDonald-Lampson), 2. Dennis Weidon (View Royal), 3. Gary Elander (Lampson).

50-yard freestyle, girls under 14-1: Sandra Mezer (South Park), 2. Valerie Kowles (Lampson), 3. Margo Bowditch (Oak Bay).

50-yard freestyle, boys 14 and over-1: Linda McColl (Oak Bay), 2. Pat Morgan (Victoria West), 3. Beatrix Standridge (Oak Bay).

200-yard relay, boys, Grades I-VI-1: Sir James Douglas, 2. South Park, 3. Monterey.

200-yard relay, girls, Grades I-VI-1: St. Margaret's, 2. Oak Bay, 3. Monterey.

200-yard relay, boys, Grades VII-VIII-1: Lampson, 2. Oak Bay, 3. Monterey.

Winter Cup Golf Results

Mrs. W. S. Smith and Mrs. L. H. Harrell were named winners of the winter "A" cup this week at Uplands Golf Club.

Mrs. Smith was gross winner with 264 for 54 holes while Mrs. Harrell won low net honors with 240 for 54 holes.

Mrs. D. Horsford won the Lansdowne Cup competition with Mrs. W. Erickson being named runner-up. In the consolation flight, Mrs. G. Ford was winner with Mrs. G. Chambers runner-up.

Mrs. Chambers won the hidden hole competition Friday with Mrs. H. C. Gill runner-up.

The women's section will hold a general meeting next Friday at 2 preceded by a two-ball foursome.

Flyers Hang On as Cats Claw in Vain

Edmonton's Big Team Surprises

Edmonton 2, Victoria 1

By BILL WALKER,

The big, rough and just as rugged Edmonton Flyers came to town Friday night a spoiling for a victory, but not without a fight, and they got both.

Five time losers and holder of only one blue ribbon up until their appearance, the Flyers belied their lowly position with a hair-raising 2-1 victory over Victoria's Cougars, first Western Hockey League demerit mark for the Cats on home ice this season.

The hair-raising came in the final period as the Cougars threw the book at the Flyers and goalkeeper Glen Hall and the Flyers threw it right back.

Trailing 2-0 on second-period goals by Len Haley and Jim Anderson, the Cougars snapped back into the battle at the 6:36 mark when Jack McIntyre flipped a backhand past Hall.

But that was it despite a rousing finish that during the final 72 seconds saw goalie Jerry Cotnam out of the nets and Hall brushing off rubber like a cow's tail swishing flies.

It was only Edmonton's second victory of the season, but the Flyers gave every indication that they're not the eighth-place club they were when they came to town.

"Well, I guess I'll get another pay," said coach Norman "Bud" Poile of the visitors while his counterpart, Eddie Dorchow, was disgruntled at the ragged showing of the Cougars.

HAD CHANCES

"We had our chances," said Eddie, "but we started too late. The long layoff didn't do us any good. They got that first goal and it gave them the lift they needed. We had no excuses."

Poile, incidentally, went on record as saying that, in his opinion, the Flyers were at least a fourth-place club while Calgary Stampede were the club to beat.

He refused to elaborate, however, except to caution that Saskatoon Quakers would still be around when they pick the marbles out of the regulation ring in March. "They're good," he asserted.

Meanwhile, the Cougars, for whom defeat snapped a three-game winning streak, attempt to get back on the right track tonight when they meet Tacoma Rockets at Tacoma, and Sunday, when they are guests of the Seattle Bombers.

HARD-HITTING CLUB

Actually, the Cats weren't too far off winning form Friday, despite a hustling hard-hitting Edmonton club that kept them off stride most of the evening, but dame fortune was holding the trump cards.

Edmonton's first goal came on a screened shot by Haley, which Cotnam didn't see or made no move to cover, the puck never leaving the ice as it crossed the line and rattled off the bottom bar.

The second goal was a clean break by Anderson who fired the puck between Cotnam's pads.

Colin Kilburn had a glorious opportunity late in the game when he got a partial break down left wing, but Kilburn clipped the post and the chance went for naught.

During the final hectic seconds, the Flyers thrice attempted to score on the empty net, missing twice with Kilburn blocking another try. The Cougars were like bees around a honey pot which made Edmonton's victory all the sweeter.

"There's one thing," Poile fired as a parting shot, "we may lose some games, but nobody is going to beat us on hustle."

And of the capacity house, there's few who should disagree with that statement.

First Triumph

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25 (UP)—The Pittsburgh Hornets, champions of the American Hockey League last season, moved into the "win column" today for the first time this year.

Displaying outstanding form for the first time this season, the Hornets defeated the Cleveland Barons, 4-1, Friday night. The triumph cracked their four-game losing streak and the loss was Cleveland's first after two victories.

Ray Timmer, Bob Sabourin, Willie Marshall and Phil Maloney scored for Pittsburgh while Eddie Olson tallied for Cleveland.

S. J. Willis' Boys Win Credit for Artistry

BY PATRICIA PETRIE

Two boys of Grade Nine at S. J. Willis High, Osborne Love and Morgan Hamilton, are to receive credit for reconditioning a clock. The clock is of maple wood with black walnut letters instead of numbers. The letters are contained in the word "woodworking."

The clock now hangs in the industrial arts wing in the wood working room. They did a beautiful job.

The dance band played for the first dance on Friday night. It has an enrollment of ten members. Under the direction of Mr. Vern Dawson, the band plays for the grade eight and nine evening parties, as well as the noon dances.

The girls' Glee Club is practicing Christmas carols, meanwhile. They'll provide background music for the Marionettes Christmas Nativity Play at the Christmas concert.

The string orchestra, under Miss Joan Creighton, is preparing for the Christmas concert, too.

The concert orchestra, also supervised by Miss Creighton,

Old Woollens Prized In Blanket Campaign

BY JOSEPH HAEGART

A drive for woollens of all kinds is on at Central Junior High School.

This is a Junior Red Cross activity to help the needy people of Victoria and the children's hospitals. Clean sweaters, socks, blankets, coats, and anything of wool, holes or not, are asked for.

This drive has received complete co-operation from the school staff and Central has until November 19 to collect. The articles contributed by students will be gathered together and shipped to Vancouver to the Fairchild Wool Mills to be made into blankets. This school drive was brought to the attention of the students' council on October 19 by Sharon Reid, secretary of the council.

The secretary also declared a letter had been received from the Gehlke Co. and the Trophy Craft Ltd. asking for orders for Christmas cards. These cards may have school designs, pictures, etc., on them. If over 300 students wish for one or more the orders will be carried out. Cards will cost at least 10 cents.

Sharon Reid also brought up the suggestion of having school pins this year. In past years pins have been small and of enamel with a monogram of the school in the school colors, red, white and green.

TODAY'S STARS, TOMORROW'S MEMORIES

Diamond Roundabout

By OSCAR FRALEY

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (UP)—You don't need a crystal ball to discern that the baseball names of today are the baseball memories of tomorrow — and that for many major leaguers tomorrow may come in 1953.

One of the greats, Ted Williams of the Red Sox, admitted last week that he probably never will come back after his tour of service in Korea. Lots of others — some of them admittedly — are nearing the end of the glory road.

Among those who face the fact that they have nearly played out the string are such as Little Phil Rizzuto, Don DiMaggio, Jackie Robinson and Johnny Mize.

Silently apprehensive are such as Preacher Roe, Bob Feller, Harry Brecheen, Hal Newhouser and Bill Nicholson.

Annually a long line of players arrives and departs from the major leagues. So you discount the might-have-beens and the hardly-ables. But those named were, in their day, headlines under the big top. Some of them will beat the old fellow with the scythe another year, or maybe two, but they know that soon it is hail and farewell.

Rizzuto admits it when, after

No Personal Foul in Three Years: Proud Record of Jim Allen's Vets

BY RAY SIDAWAY

Minor soccer circles are buzzing about the success of the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association first division league leaders, Army, Navy, Air Force Vets.

In league competition so far this year the Vets have driven opposing goalkeepers to frustration with their ability to snipe goals from all angles, having scored 32 counters and having had only two scored against them.

The team was organized three years ago and 10 members of the original club are still active with the present club.

Knowing each other's playing style and working together as a unit, plus a stone wall defense,

CLUBS MUSIC

Symphony Club School Venture

By MARJORIE LAWSON

Something a little different in the way of clubs has been started at Mount View. The Symphony Club, under sponsorship of Mr. S. McFarland, will attend all concerts by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, Sunday afternoons, at the Royal Theatre.

The students are to be given special rates for all concerts.

The students will be taught the art of "muscle appreciation."

The slate of officers serving this group are: President, Dick Pearce; secretary-treasurer, Marilyn Cann; and all arrangements will be taken care of by Lorna Mulholland and Marlene Hunt.

A large group of "aspiring thespians" turned out for the first meeting of the Mount View Drama Club. Under the leadership of Garth Taylor and Barbara Whiteley, the group is hard at work on readings and auditions.

Rehearsals will get under way in the near future for the two plays to be presented in the coming Drama Festival.

Miss E. Pigot and Mr. G. Thomson will direct the presentations.

The group is also planning to work on radio plays in the near future.

DAMSELS IN DISTRESS

By BRIAN GRIER

On Friday morning, 22 Oak Bay High damsels appeared at school in riotous garb, to be greeted by howls of laughter or wide-eyed stares. It was girls' Y-Teen initiation day.

Regalia of the typical initiates consisted of one stocking with a bright garter and a running shoe on one foot.

The following were elected: 9A, Maureen Lamb; 9B, Don Clark; 9C, Sue Speck; 10A, Sandra Parton; 10B, Sue Burnett; 10C, Tom Forbes; 11A, Brian McCreadie; 11B, Ken James; 11C, Merlin Hawes; 12A, Joan Collins; 12B, Jim Bird.

Election of the executive will take place next Monday.

Nominations received up to the present are: Janice Brinkworth, Shirley Turner, Shirley Bennell.

The third annual inter-house swimming gala held in the Crystal Garden proved a complete success, as a large crowd of cheering spectators and competitors watched as House 1 amassed a total of 64 points to carry off the laurels for the evening.

House 2 was second with 33 points and House 4 third with 49.

Defending champion, House 3, trailed with 39 points.

Warren Williams and Gail Stott sparked House 1 to victory. Many thanks go to officials: Archie McKinnon, chief referee and head timekeeper; Art Stott, starter; Jack Todd, head judge; Mrs. B. Fraser and E. Costain and other members of the staff who assisted in the organizing of the meet.

A proud Mount Newton High student writes: "We licked that big Royal Oak school at soccer. They're bigger boys, but we won." The score, on Wednesday, was 2-1.

BENEVOLENT PATERNALISM RULED OLD CANADA

French-Canadianism Nourished By British

(This is the third in a series of stories, based on lectures delivered by Prof. C. S. Burchill, on "Problems of Canadian Democracy." He is currently lecturing to university extension classes at Victoria College.)

In the two previous articles the European and North American backgrounds of Canada's history have been discussed.

Now comes the examination of the sort of man, the type of society which developed under these influences.

In the first place the French colonial society evolved was smug and self-satisfied. It enjoyed a standard of living higher than any known in the 18th century.

French Canada never saw any hint of rebellion against authority. If there were discontented individuals, they were successfully shunted off into the western wilderness; and never came back. The settlers loved their community life.

Tyranny might have eroded this contentment, as it did in France. But the environment made the difference. In France there were too many people, too few jobs, and too little land. The weak were trampled. In French Canada there was more land and more profitable work than any man could handle. And it was the concern of colonial government to keep the "habitant" happy. Landlords were prohibited from raising rents as early as 1711, and the rising value of lands was secured to the settler, not the landlord.

There were special courts to hear the complaints of tenants against landlords. Costs were small, and more important, the decisions were generally for the tenant.

Resulting from this solicitude, General Murray found, soon after the conquest of New France by the British, that normal rental for good, arable land was about $1 a year per 100 acres!

There were industries in the new world. Fur and farming were not the only ones. There were shipyards, breweries, tanneries, ironworks and other activities, generally operating at a loss because of high wages. These were mainly state-operated.

There was little chance of sub-

Vic High Fans In Oilskins

BY RUTH SONES

Decked out in rubber boots, raincoats and umbrellas, screaming fans crammed the Crystal Garden Wednesday to witness the annual Vic High inter-house swimming gala.

With the colorful school band setting the pace, soaked competitors put everything they had into serious competition as well as many novelty events.

Highlights of the meet were the candle race, where the contestants, carrying burning candles, swam the length of the pool, and the clothing race in which the swimmers, fully clothed, swam the same distance.

Other outstanding features of the splash-filled evening were breath-taking relays and free style races.

Although House 3, last year's winners, made a valiant attempt to retain their hard-earned title, House 4 with powerful junior entries, came through with a smashing victory.

Another big attraction this week, especially for the school's male population, were two sparkling concerts by the girl-studded band. This is the first time girls have been included in the band.

TAKE IT FROM ME

By AMY BANDREVICK

Getting up "with the birds" is, as far as I'm concerned, strictly for the birds. There is no need to tell you what an ordeal it is to try to convince yourself that you're wide awake when you know perfectly well that you'd rather be sound asleep. Clammy fingers of fog, characteristic of the past few mornings, seem to delight in pulling the curl of hair and creeping down under collars. By the time you reach your destination after a fog treatment, you feel about as glamorous as a dish rag. I'm not quite sure which I like least, rain or fog.

PUPILS WALLOP TEACHERS; BUT IT'S ALL FUN

BY PATRICIA PETRIE

For the first time in S. J. Willis Junior High's brief history, the students' representative basketball team has beaten the teachers.

Miss Jackie Sherman was the only woman in the game. The girls' physical education instructor says, herself, she spent much of the time on the floor sitting down. And she was literally sat upon.

The students whopped up 36 points against their teachers' 29.

Wednesday it happened, and it is a red letter day in history.

WITCH'S WIGGLE

Students Romp At Esquimalt High's Party

BY SHIRLEY HALLWARK

Antics of Rastus and Rufus, played by drama students Roy Byfield and Bryan Mee, promoted sales for Esquimalt High's drama club sponsored dance, "Witch's Wiggle."

Friday night the recreation room was the scene of wild imaginings as costumed students danced to the music of Ken's Orchestra. Entertainment, suggested by M.C. Bryan Mee, consisted of novelty dances, apple ducking, a pie eating contest, as well as presentation of a short, humorous skit by the dramatists.

Highlight of the evening was the choosing of the witch and the wizard, who were the boy and girl designated as having the best costumes. Effective decorations added to the atmosphere of the scene, and the well organized event went off without the usual Halloween pranks.

Of interest to most students and teachers, the production of "Curtain Up," a comedy by Philip King, is currently showing at a local theatre. Two former students of Esquimalt High, Mary Hines and Mary Burgess, turn in fine performances and assist in making the play an evening full of enjoyment.

Organization of training sessions Friday afternoons at the Y.W.C.A. have promoted interest in girls' Y-Teens' activities. A large turnout of E.H.S. girls takes part in these important sessions and also makes up the training executive. They are Doreen Ray, president; Gloria Moly, vice-president; Betty Lloyd, secretary; Mandy Bell, treasurer.

Students Make Belmont High Photo-History

BY DAVID GURR

Last year the Belmont Photography Club, came into existence. The club's most valuable member, Donald Rantz, is one of this year's graduates and therefore the organization is feverishly searching for somebody to take charge, and produce as favorable results as he has done.

The photographers perform many tasks, such as developing and printing films for students. They also enlarge pictures up to an eight-inch by ten-inch size take photographs of school functions such as plays and graduation ceremonies.

At the moment they are very busy producing a photographic history of the school. This should be a very great attraction to anyone interested in Belmont High.

While all this was and is going on, another small organization came into being. This was the philatelists' Club, run under the auspices of Mr. Palsson. Once a week the members meet, to swap various stamps and talk shop. Once or twice a year competitions are held to find the neatest, or most varied album. There are, nevertheless, some very fine collections. As the club becomes more advertised, membership grows until now there is a sizeable organization meeting every week.

NO FIRES, CARS, INDUSTRY, PEOPLE, WOULD END ALL SMOG

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25 (AP)—Los Angeles could get rid of its smog, perhaps, but George P. Murray's formula for achieving it is not popular with the 4,000,000 persons in the county.

Murray, general chairman of the institute on atmospheric purification, made this observation to the institute Friday: "The people in Los Angeles County must not believe they will ever have absolutely clean air here unless most of them move away, unless backyard and open-fire burning is discontinued, unless most automobiles are eliminated, unless people who remain here quit smoking, and unless we eliminate industry, for which there would then be no need, anyway."

Radio-Directed Fire Crews Test Defense Organization

Radio controlled fire fighting services will be featured in civil defense exercises Sunday morning, with seven fire departments taking part, co-ordinator L. G. Hatcher announced Friday.

At 10 a.m. Langford, View Royal and Colwood volunteer departments; Saanich, Oak Bay and Victoria departments will send their trucks from their halls to dispersal points in the area. Chief Brier will act as radio control officer from his car. Trucks without radios will be accompanied by equipped automobiles.

The test will accustom firemen to their dispersal points as well as test the effectiveness of radio control.

Protection will be provided the various communities taking part in the test by direct radio communication with the various halls and a system of standby trucks.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd of 104 Warren Ave., Ottawa, is 9 years of age and in grade 4 of Centre Street School at Ottawa. He belongs to the 7th B Cub Pack and his hobby is making model airplanes. Already he had definite ideas of what "Security" means to him at his age, as expressed in his drawing above.

How do YOU picture Security?

In whatever terms the individual may think of security... everybody wants it.

The youngster may think of security simply as traffic protection but grown-ups know that a most important side of security is having financial reserves laid by... reserves to meet sudden emergencies, to take advantage of opportunities, and funds for the days of retirement when no longer on the active list.

No matter what your circumstances, now or in the future, you will be glad to have Canada Savings Bonds to call upon. They are a real investment in security.

Canada Savings Bonds help you save. They can be paid for in cash, or in instalments, as you earn.

GET THE SAVINGS BOND HABIT!

Canada Savings Bonds—Seventh Series—mature in 10 years and 9 months. They pay an average of 3.44% per year if held for this full term. The bonds are cashable at full face value plus interest at any time at any bank in Canada. Each bond bears ten 3/4% coupons—the first of these being payable on August 1st, 1954 (1 year and 9 months from date of issue). Subsequent coupons become payable August 1st yearly thereafter until maturity. If the bond is cashed before the first coupon becomes payable simple interest is paid at 2.14% per year calculated monthly. The average return per year gradually improves the longer the bond is held until it reaches 3.44% at maturity. The Seventh Series is available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1000 and $5000 and the limit for holdings in any one name is $5000. The bonds are registered in the owner's name. They are non-assignable and non-transferable. They may be purchased from investment dealers, banks and other savings institutions or through the Payroll Savings Plan.

PUZZLES & PASTIMES

FOR PARTY FUN

A good way to get things rolling merrily at a party is to play "Sardine."

Start the game by choosing a "head" or "tail" as the large enough to hold several people. Then, after five minutes, the crowd scatters to search for whoever is "it."

As each group finds "it" he hides in a closet, bathroom, or wherever he can do so without letting the other players see him. Before long the hiding place becomes packed with "sardines."

The last player to find the hiding place becomes "it" for the next game.

All sorts of possible hideouts suggest themselves—a closet, curtained alcove, bathroom shower, etc.

LIPOGRAM REBUS

Webster defines a lipogram as a poem in which there is omitted a certain letter. This lipogram also is a rebus. With the missing find the rebus solution to the letter word: Do you know the place of yesterday?

Do you know the place of yesterday? Do you know the place of yesterday?

Can I log your mind to a little doubt, Of the place of the light after it's gone out?

TEST YOUR TONGUE Repeat this swiftly: Six score almy serpents silently slithered slowly southward Saturday.

HOW MANY Give me one of your fish and I shall have twice as many as you," said one boy. "No," said the other, "give me one and we'll both have the same number." How many has each?

SLEIGHT-OF-HAND

As a party entertainer, prepare two pieces of cord each about 12 feet long. Tie the ends of one piece to the wrists of a woman. Pass the other through this loop and tie it to the wrists of a man. As a result these two cords looped together securely tie together the couple. Inform them that it is their task to get free without untying the knots or cutting the cord.

Probably, the couple will step over and under the cord and twist it in all sorts of ways in an endeavor to extricate themselves, until it is necessary for you to show them how to set themselves free. One of the couple must take the centre of the cord with which he is tied and pass it through the part that is tied around one of the wrists of his partner. This should be done on the top and the bottom.

Next draw this cord over the fingers and out at the underpart of the hand, and each one is free.

1918 'Flu Greater Than War

By MARGUERITE LAUGHLIN

Over the city hung a spirit of unaccustomed quiet and loneliness. Church doors were closed. School bells were stifled. Theatres were dark.

This was Victoria in the fall of 1918 when the influenza scourge swept through the land.

More people lost their lives through their flu epidemic than were lost during the war of 1914-1918. It was no respecter of persons, high or low, rich or poor—all were victims of the dread influenza disease—Spanish influenza. It was so named because it supposedly originated in Spain.

Laughlin

SOON AN EPIDEMIC

In the beginning of October, 1918, a few cases of influenza were reported in Victoria. These spread at such an alarming rate that in a very short time it reached epidemic stages. As a preventive measure to combat the disease a special meeting of the provincial cabinet was called and on recommendation of the board of health, an order in council was passed forbidding any place of public assembly to be opened.

This far-reaching order applied to Victoria, Esquimalt, Saanich and Oak Bay.

This ruling, which ordered the closure of all places of assembly, included the closing of all churches and places of worship, schools and universities, lecture rooms, libraries, dance halls, theatres and poolrooms. It forbade the holding of fraternal meetings, societies or social clubs. The public of Victoria co-operated readily to these restricted activities; their plans were reorganized but all knew preventive measures were necessary.

Dr. A. G. Price, city medical officer, also cautioned people from gathering outdoors in large numbers. The pulse of the city was lessened; its streets unusually quiet; playgrounds unfrequented. Ministers exhorted citizens to read their Bibles and continue in prayer without the benefit of public worship.

Another temporary 60-bed hospital was opened at 1124 Fort Street, home of Dr. T. J. Jones, and the buildings at Stadacona Park were taken over by the military hospital accommodation at the willows camp was severely overtaxed.

Fairfield fire hall at Five Points was also filled as a hospital.

To help during the epidemic women who had nursing experience were asked to volunteer their services, as many trained workers were serving in war hospitals.

The appeal for volunteer nurses was quickly answered by young women who were put under the supervision of a capable nurse.

While some businesses lagged during the epidemic, others were doing a brisk trade. Druggists were especially busy filling prescriptions. There was also a heavy demand for cinnamon bark and essence of cinnamon as these were thought to be effective preventives.

Another extremely busy spot in town was the government liquor store, which reported a lively increase in sales. Liquor, especially whiskey, was in heavy demand, but in 1918 it could only be purchased on the prescription issued by a doctor.

Clubs and societies were obliged to cancel all plans for concerts and dances, and all meetings had to be postponed. The Canadian Club which had arranged a big luncheon and reception and a big dance had to be abandoned.

for four visiting federal cabinet ministers was forced to cancel arrangements, much to the disappointment of many Victorians.

NO CHURCH FOR MARRIAGE

Many unusual circumstances arose during the ban. It was reported a young man applied at the Provincial Health Office for a temporary lifting of the regulations as he wished to be married. But nowhere in church could a ceremony be performed, as all were ordered closed. It was possible, he was told, the marriage could take place in the registrar's office with a very limited attendance.

In one city it is said, girls were requested to refrain from the highly contagious practice of kissing their sailor friends.

Dr. A. G. Price advised all persons having flu symptoms, which in the beginning resembled a common cold with added symptoms of fever, sore throat, aching head, back and limbs, to go to bed and to call on a doctor. The doctor, after 24 hours, he admonished, were often the deciding issue. Complications often arose when the patient was convalescing, and frequently resulted in death.

The ban on public meetings was effective in over 40 B.C. municipalities. Logging camps were not immune and the sickness spread among the Eskimos.

The ban continued on for several weeks until the authorities were assured the disease had abated.

LUCKY SEVENTH DOLLAR BILLS GROW

Canada gets another chance to climb on the thrifty wagon with the Series Seven of Canada Savings Bonds on sale.

They're calling this one "The Lucky Seventh" and tagging it with slogans as "It's a Number Seven Can't Lose," "Beat that again Savings Bonds at," "That is they are always worth 100 cents on the dollar plus interest and can be cashed at any time."

The only change in the vehicle this year is the fact that the interest rate has been increased, working out to 3.44 per cent over the piece.

Once again, plans, and camps, mills and factories, firms and businesses are making bond purchases available through payroll deduction.

Right across Canada stock and bond men borrowed from their firms are busy organizing plans. Since the second loan, 151 men in this setup have made it possible for employees to buy 690 million worth of thrills.

Hollywood Film Shop

By BEN COOK

Mickey Rooney might not like being described as a bucket, but that's exactly what Richard Quine, the movie director, called him.

The way it came about was that Quine was talking about how he and Joanne Taps, the Columbia producer, agreed Rooney had been playing too much of the same kind of roles lately.

"We figured it was time to get him away from routine," Quine said. "He'd done this sort again, and very successfully, in 'Sound Off,' and we didn't want to take the (there it comes) bucket back to the same celluloid well, even though it had paid off big at the box office. Well, anyway, I talked and Quine decided to have Rooney play a small role in a picture who is the fall guy for all his pals in the navy. The result was 'All Ashore,' a Columbia Technicolor musical which Quine wrote in conjunction with Blake Edwards."

HAS PATHOS

"Rooney has a wonderful quality of pathos," Quine said. "He has a great sympathy for the underdog, and he responds frequently in his pictures. Mind you, we have plenty of laughs for the Mick in 'All Ashore,' but I think the picture gives him a broader scope than he usually has had."

Quine believes it is a bad policy to turn an actor into a rubber stamp.

"Eventually it becomes worn, and then sometimes it is too late for the performer to turn to other types of parts," he said.

Quine remembers his own plight, in the days when he was a stage and screen actor.

"I played straight juveniles until I was 18, and then I got heartily sick of it. I got to the point where I'd like to save other actors from the same fate."

Songs Are Like Old Friends to Doris Day

There is a handful of songs that are more than just bits of music to Doris Day. They are old friends who write letters to the studio.

"Of course, I'll never forget my debt of gratitude to 'Day After Day.' That song gave me a new name. When Barney Rapp was holding a band audition in Cincinnati, I decided to sing 'Day After Day.' Barney not only hired me but recommended that I change my name from Doris Kappelhoff to Doris Day."

"Next on the list was 'It's Magic,' from my first movie.

"It's Magic" turned out to be just that for me. A more magic wand was not waved over Cinderella. It launched me on my screen career."

Others of those old friends bear such names as "Sentimental Journey," "The One I Love Belongs to Somebody Else," "Moonlight Bay" and "Just One of Those Things."

Of them, the first was the song she found most popular with former Second World War service men when she visited hospitals.

"I was singing it by Miss Day last year in the three movies, 'I'll See You in My Dreams,' 'Moonlight Bay,' and 'Lullaby of Broadway.' They gave her a boost up the final rung of the ladder to the No. 1 spot in motion pictures. The nation's movie exhibitors recently voted Miss Day the No. 1 feminine box office attraction of 1951 as a result of her performance in those films."

"Good songs, like real friends, are hard to find," Miss Day said. "I'll never forget these."

ELAINE STEWART of "Lovely to Look At" will be seen again in the Technicolor musical, "The Merry Widow."

Provocative Parisiennes Get Starring Roles In Top Flight Productions

Ever since the "Mademoiselle From Armentieres," French girls have had a special appeal for men on this side of the Atlantic.

No doubt that explains why Hollywood has been so quick to grab them.

Miss Calvet, who led the postwar trek from Paris to Hollywood, has just completed "What Price Glory" for 20th Century-Fox, playing Charlene to the Captain Flagg of James Cagney and the Sgt. Quirt of Dan Dailey. Now she is working in a big-budget Technicolor western in the same studio, this one entitled "Powder River," with Rory Calhoun and Cameron Mitchell slugging it out for her affections.

Grief for Academy Winners

There's almost as much grief as glory in winning an academy award, according to Broderick Crawford and Claire Trevor.

They got to discussing the situation on the set of "Stop, You're Killing Me," at Warner Bros., in which they are co-starred. It is one of the rare films in which two Oscar holders have been cast.

One penalty of acquiring the golden statuettes, they pointed out, is that the critics and customers sound off in disappointment if you don't equal or better your Oscar role in subsequent pictures.

"Scripts good enough to win Oscars don't come along like the daily mail," said Crawford, who won his Oscar for "All the King's Men."

CAN PICK SCRIPTS

Luckily for me," said Miss Trevor, Oscar-ed for her performance as a discomfited in "Key Largo," "I am in a position to pick my scripts. I won't do a picture unless I believe in the story and my character has integrity."

There also is the jab jinx, which Crawford and Miss Trevor have escaped. There have been some cases in Hollywood where Oscar recipients couldn't get work after achieving their new eminence because producers assumed they would sniff at anything like a run-of-the-mill part.

The two stars in the current case agreed that a change of pace is the best answer to the problem of comparison.

IN DANCING ROLE

"In this picture," said Crawford, "I sing and dance for the first time on the screen. It may be the last time, too, but I'm sure nobody will compare my performance to my award role. There will be nothing to compare."

As for Miss Trevor: "This is a role with the kind of comedy I haven't touched for a long, long time. It's completely different from the heavy dramatic things I've been asked to do. I've never since Key Largo, and I'd like to work out any comparisons."

In "Stop, You're Killing Me," a comedy based on a Damon Runyon story, Crawford and Miss Trevor are cast as husband and wife.

Soldier Found Peace in Raising

Soldier Settlement Farm Proved Profitable Haven for Morris Wilson of Cowichan After Army Spell in First World War

By G. V. FAULKNER

As has often been said, man is a land animal. His ability to stay on the sea or in the air depends on the land-prowess of his genes.

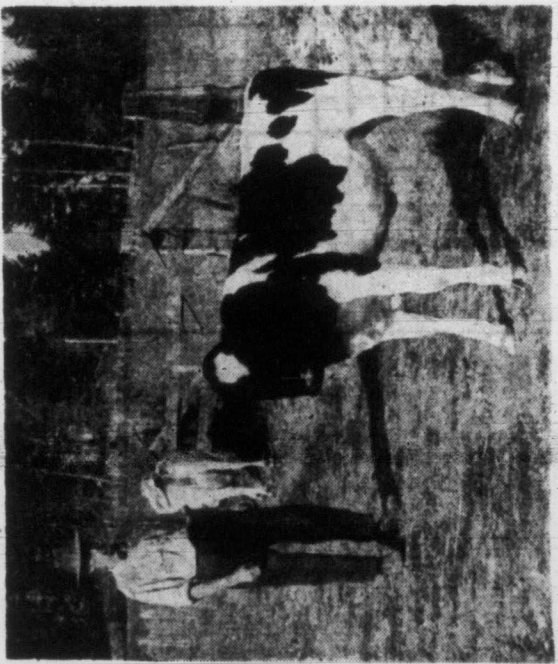

His ability to build great cities depends on his wealth; only the rich of the land can sustain him. In these days when people are moving into cities it's refreshing to meet a family content to remain on the land. Their reward is a measure of stability unobtainable elsewhere.

Morris Wilson of Kew Farm, near Cowichan Station, was born on a farm in Suffolk, England. Tiring of rural life and wanting to travel, he came to Canada in 1905 where he took up steam engineering.

BACK TO THE LAND

A stint in the Canadian army in the First World War dulled Morris' appetite for traveling to the point where farming looked pretty good. In 1919 he started under the "Soldier Settlement Plan" and has been content to stay with it ever since. An added measure of the success he had made of farm life is the fact that his 21-year-old son, Ridley, has elected to remain on the farm with him.

Main pride of the Wilsons is their 24-head herd of registered Holsteins. At the Cowichan fair this year six

Shrub Selection for Rock Gardens

This is the first of a series of two articles by Cecil Solly on Rock Garden Shrubs.

In this part of the country where so many homes are situated to take advantage of a view, the problem of sloping land is a vexing one. Some few of the gardens in this area are on a flat area, but most are terraced in some form or other. Quite often the street is much higher or lower than the house, with a steep bank or rock garden used to beautify the slope.

Many gardeners have, at some time or other, tried to care for a lawn on a steep slope; those who still persist in the use of grass have to admit that it is a great deal more work than it is worth. After toiling to keep a lawn slope attractive, many have changed to one of the various ground covering vines which were listed and described on this page several years ago. Among those found most satisfactory are the evergreen vines, English Ivy, Creeping Myrtle and Kinkadee.

However, although the amount of labor and care has been reduced to a minimum by beautiful or individual about it, to express the home owner's taste or personality.

TO SUIT THE GARDEN

There are several expert firms in this area which make a profession of placing rocks correctly to suit the garden and home area beautification plan. These firms work for individual home owners, nurseries and landscape architects on contract, and are able to give good results because they have experience on rock placement. This gives the home owner the assurance that they will stay in place permanently. Should any of our readers desire to contract with any firm or nursery to have rock placement or work done, be sure to ask for references in the form of names and addresses of satisfied customers in your neighborhood before giving the go-ahead signal.

NO WEEDS
Be quite sure that there is no quick grass or other bad weeds in the soil either before or after the rocks are placed. Should any top soil be brought in to add (50-50) to the peat moss, get it from a reliable firm, that will assure you it is free from these troubles.

PLANTING PREPARATION

One of the best systems in the choice of plants for rock gardens is to use mostly shrubs, evergreen and flowering. When a shrub is properly selected by shape, height and should need little or no care other than pruning to keep the shrubs in correct shape.

The most important job is to prepare the pockets properly before any plants are set. The area will be expected to take care of its food and water needs in a natural way, so, before any planting is done, the earth mixture should be prepared carefully. It should contain about equal parts of good soil, garden peat moss and sand. If the original soil is sandy to start with, then use an equal amount of peat moss and humus.

To this good earth, for each pocket, a couple of pounds of a good brand of commercial plant food fertilizer and some garden fertilizer should be added. In future years, should be added. To prevent any infestation of damaging soil insects, like root weevil or wire worms, which might damage growing roots, it is a good investment to add to the soil, before planting, some soil insecticide or repellent.

Remember that the shrubs will be there for a long time and the soil will only need to be prepared once, if it is done properly before setting.

PLANNING THE SHRUBS

The choice of shrubs, and the placement of them, is quite important. They must be, mostly, chosen for the sprawling or low growing types. Plan to have a selection of those which will have attrac-

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q—A neighbor recommends cutting off and burning the branches of our raspberries as soon as we have picked the fruit. Is that good advice?

A—Yes, it is a good practice to destroy and burn all canes that bore fruit this year, not only to help control disease but also to allow more light and air for the canes that will bear fruit next year. Canes bear fruit but once, so their removal preserves soil moisture and plant food.

Q—Does sawdust provide a good fertilizer for a planting of rhododendrons?

A—Sawdust has virtually no fertilizing value. Fresh sawdust contains about 10 pounds of available plant nutrients per ton of air-dry material. However, its use as a mulch or adding to the soil is recommended — but a fertilizer strong in nitrogen should be mixed with it.

Q—Our corn patch has a slight infestation of cutworms. What should we do to avoid its reappearance next year?

A—Remove at once and burn all smut bolls. Rotate your crops and avoid varieties of corn known to be susceptible.

Holsteins

because of the difficulty in getting farm help. When Ridley left school, however, he joined his Dad in rebuilding a herd with some young stock Morris had kept. Their plans received an unexpected assist when a chance came to buy some of their old stock back again. Veteran milker, "Collumner Esther Winnie" is one of the auctioned cows that finally returned to the home farm.

PROVIDES OWN FEED

Kew Farm's 130 acres of peat bottom and hillside provide all the feed for the herd. A bit extra feed is bought from a local feed store. Much of the bottom land is given over to the production of potatoes and peas, the latter going to the Victoria frozen food industry.

Those of you accustomed to look on the lower island as the "banana belt" of the province will be shocked to learn that early frosts are a hazard to be reckoned with on many farms in the area. Damaging spring frosts have occurred at Kew Farm as late as July 5; a fall frost on September 5 this year did considerable harm to the potato tops, enough to have a noticeable effect on crop yield.

"Frost pockets" generally occur in low-lying areas such as old lake bottoms, so does a good portion of the Island's best land. Fortunately for our peace of mind, and that of the Tourist Bureau personnel, weather stations are never located in places of that sort. Official weather reports will concede the "first frost of the season" some time around the middle of October.

Printing firms, naturally, spread themselves pictorially where their stationery was concerned, and local firms outdid each other in getting out these fancy envelopes. Of course the Times Printing and Publishing Company was to the fore, so a selection of early covers makes an excellent choice for illustrating this article.

FROM THE WELLBURN COLLECTION

Whenever anyone requires any material relating to Canadian philately, Gerry Wellburn can generally be relied upon to produce it. For his accumulation is really more in the nature of a philatelic archives than an ordinary stamp collection. So the examples shown have kindly been loaned by him for the occasion.

In fact it was he who suggested this article in these Times covers his interest in these Times covers is partly due to his having started his career as office boy with this paper.

The Times started publishing in 1884, but the first specimen of one of their envelopes is dated July 1, 1885. It is addressed to R. T. Williams, the well-known printer and alderman of that period. The design is typical of the '90's and shows the name of the firm against a background of apple blossoms, along with the front page of the paper in miniature.

The stamp is the 2c green, which was in use in 1887, showing Queen Victoria as a young woman.

FEATURING "THE EMPRESS CITY"

The next example we have is dated August 2, 1906, and is also from the Williams correspondence. A large part of the front is taken up with cuts showing the scenic beauties of Victoria, headed with the slogan "The Empress City of all the West." In addition, the entire

Along the top is the exhortation "Advance Victoria—100,000 in 1910." The envelope is more modern in style. The envelope was addressed to Heskist, B.C., but was returned "not called for." It probably contained a bill! The stamp used was the red 2c plus 1c War Tax of George V, so we note that the population was at that time only 30,000, requiring an increase of 70,000 in four years to reach 100,000 in 1910.

Another change in the design is to be noted the following year, for a 1907 envelope now shows a cut of the Times Building. Several newswomen enliven the scene, along with two express wagons, both horse-drawn. A miniature front page is again shown, the heading on it being "The Victoria Daily Times." The King Edward VII 2c is still in use, but shows for the first time the new mechanical roller type of canceller which has been in operation ever since.

A—The age of any horse is calculated from January 1, regardless of the time of the year it was actually born. A foal becomes a yearling on January 1 after the date of its birth.

Q—How much of the area of Finland is covered by lakes?

A—Finland, called the "Land of a Thousand Lakes," has more than 11 per cent of its area in lakes.

Q—Why was the Colosseum in Rome given this name?

A—It had been called the Flavian Amphitheatre, but came to be known as the Colosseum from the colossal statue of the Emperor Nero which stood nearby.

Q—Why is the railway beetle so called?

A—This beetle, native to Paraguay, is about three inches long and sends forth a strong red light from both ends of its body. It also sends out a green light and is called the railway beetle because these red and green lights look like railway signals.

Q—The name of what city will be carried on the first United Nations commemorative stamp?

A—San Francisco, where the U.N. charter was first signed in 1945.

Q—Are lakes subject to tides?

A—The tidal forces of the sun and moon produce tides in inland lakes, but they are usually too small to measure. Lake Superior, for example, has a tide with a range of about two inches.

Q—Are penguins true birds?

A—Yes. They are descended from ancient birds that had normal flying wings. They belong to a family of which most members have died out and are now known only as fossils. Seventeen species still exist.

Q—When was the moon photographed for the first time?

A—The first photograph of the moon was taken by John W. Draper in 1840.

Learn From Previous Errors

"With so little on the board, just queens and jacks, I didn't think she had a chance to go out so quickly and I hated to lose my chance to win the pack.

"Yes, my play unlucky or unskillful."

I am sorry to say that my correspondent made an unskillful play. Let us hope that this disaster will teach her a lesson from which she can profit the next time she plays. Her partner melted only out to note that the pack was left with only three cards in her hand. Obviously a pack with only three cards cannot be terribly important in melding out. Equally important a hand with only three cards cannot be expected to defend the discard pile effectively.

My correspondent should have resigned herself immediately to eventual loss of the discard pile. Her only hope was that her partner could melt out before the opponents could take the pile.

The correct play was to meld the two queens and three tens and to discard a deuce. This would combine maximum safety with the maximum chance for melding out.

Questions And Answers

Q—Why is Bach called the "master of masters"?

A—Because his compositions inspired so many of the famous musicians who followed him, including Mozart, Beethoven and Chopin.

Q—Is Great Britain in higher or about the same latitude as the United States?

A—It is in higher latitude than the United States, but its climate is much milder because of the influence of the Gulf Stream.

Q—What did Adam Smith say was the real source of a nation's wealth?

A—His great book, "The Wealth of Nations," states that labor, and not land or money, is the real source of a nation's wealth.

Q—Who discovered the new drug aureomycin?

A—Aureomycin is obtained from a mold which was discovered by B. M. Duggar of Pearl River, N.Y. The name of the new antibiotic is derived from its golden color.

INFORMATION PLEASE

The "bookies" at camp each day went through a drill in groups of 30 men each, marching in single file, as well as in lines of 3, 5, 6, 15 and even 30 abreast, so that in no case were there any men left over. This was possible, since 30 can be divided by 1, 3, 5, 6, 15 and 30 without a remainder.

After one of the drills, one of the recruits propounded a puzzling question.

If 30 men can be formed in six different formations without any man being left over, how many men would be required to form 64 different formations without a man being left over in any case?

Among the men in camp were several who quickly figured out just how many men it would take to meet these requirements. How many men do you think it would take to march in the 64 different ways?

THEY! Well, 1,081,760! Yes, 1,081,760! That's right, 1,081,760! The answer is 1,081,760! The number of ways to form 64 different formations of 30 men each, without any men left over, is 1,081,760!

Judges Select Prize Personalities From Among 1,600 Lovely Children in Times-Hudson's Bay Competition

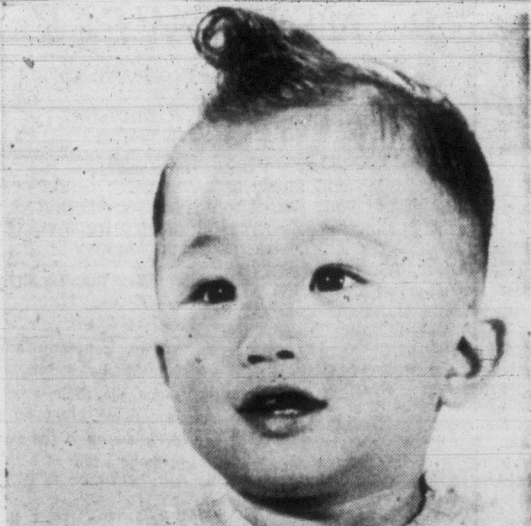

KENNETH RITCHIE
... second prize.

JOAN MAINWARING
... third prize.

ANDREW TARR
... fourth prize.

LANCE MAR
... fifth prize.

A bonnie two-year-old baby won first prize in the "Personality Parade of Children's Portraits," it was announced today.

He is Ian Rainsford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rainsford, 536 Paradise Street.

The baby was selected winner of a merchandise scrip for $50 among 1,600 children who took part in the photographic contest sponsored by the Hudson's Bay Company and the Victoria Daily Times.

"I was surprised to learn that he had won the contest," said Mrs. Rainsford. "I didn't think I had that kind of a son."

Other grand prize winners are: Kenneth Ritchie, 346 Arnold second; Joan Mainwaring, 33 Dock Street, third; Andrew Tarr, 305 Gorge Road West, fourth, and Lance Mar, 852 Princess Street, fifth.

Contest judges Bill Halkett, Times' news photographer; Mrs. Nancy Hodges, Times' columnist and M.L.A., and A. G. Culver, divisional manager for the Hudson's Bay, had so much difficulty in selecting winners that it was decided to award scrips of $5 each as fourth and fifth prizes.

The second and third prize winners will receive scrips worth $25 and $10, respectively.

Presentation of prizes will take place at a party in the Douglas Room of the Hudson's Bay Company store at 3.30 p.m. Tuesday.

Judges at the same time announced contest winners for the week ending Oct. 11. Ian Rainsford came first again in weekly competition.

Honorable mention goes to Joan Mainwaring, 33 Dock Street; Stephen Porter, 2092 Haultain Street; Patricia Nevison, 1047 Bank Street, and Stephen Clark, 1720 Kings Road.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Douglas Abbott, your friendly finance minister, went fishing in B.C. waters for nearly a week, and all he caught was a rather undernourished red snapper.

Mr. Abbott will probably go back to Ottawa convinced there are no fish in these parts, and that anyone who claims otherwise is nothing but a tourist propagandist.

Well, we cannot let Mr. Abbott have such an impression, as he might discourage other cabinet ministers from coming here to visit us.

And if there is one thing Victoria needs, it is more visits from cabinet ministers, even if the government hasn't the SLIGHTEST intention of calling an election.

Thus someone should tell Mr. Abbott the true facts of the matter, which are simple enough: even a poor fish is reluctant to add to Mr. Abbott's surplus.

Under the "Cattle" classification on the want-ad page:

COW FOR SALE. VERY REASONABLE.
I have always wanted to meet a reasonable cow.

In deploring the low level of English teaching in Canadian High Schools, a teacher is reported as saying "Some grade 13 students don't know the difference between its and it's. Others can't spell which."

Which do you wish me to spell?

A small headline the other day read:
TRUST MEN LIKE CITY
I trust they do, too.

One of the most horrible remarks imaginable has been made in connection with the U.S. election campaign.
If Mr. Eisenhower is elected, will he live in the Dwight House?

And speaking of the U.S. election, careful study of the Democratic campaign speeches seems to boil down to this: voters should re-elect the Democrats, because the voters have never been so well off. Everything COSTS more, so it MUST be better.

I spotted an ad in an eastern U.S. paper the other day, and thought for a minute that the cost of living had taken a sudden dive.

The ad, for a large and very plush hotel, offered a full course dinner for $1.00.

However, it turns out this is served only to dogs.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

A local improvement in the form of a sidewalk for Monterey Avenue, between Tinto and Central Avenues, will come before a court of revision in the Oak Bay Municipal Hall, Nov. 25. Municipal Clerk A. D. Findlay reports that the assessment rolls would be considered at that time.

Two Vancouver boys, aged 15 and 17, crew members of a C.P.R. vessel, were lodged in the Victoria juvenile detention home Friday afternoon after a C.P.R. policeman had caught them stealing two cases of beer from the ship's cargo, city police reported.

Vancouver Island section of the Illuminating Engineering Society has been granted chapter status with Kenneth Reid elected chairman. It was announced Friday.

S. E. Jarvis was elected secretary-treasurer and George Langdon, P. F. Fletcher and C. A. Fields, directors.

City detectives today reported that a thief had made an unsuccessful attempt to break into mail boxes in the Central Park Apartments, 1010 Queens, between Thursday night and Friday morning. There were marks on the boxes, just inside the main door, to show attempts had been made to pry them open.

Victoria West Community Centre will sponsor a giant Halloween bonfire and children's entertainment at Banfield Park, Craigflower Road, Friday night at 7. A children's fancy dress parade will be held and refreshments served.

Two films illustrated civil defense to an audience of 150 at George Jay School Friday night when civil defense director Leonard Hatcher and chief warden Barry Coult explained the importance of preparedness. The realistic films were "The Atom Strikes" and "Under Atomic Attack." Mr. Hatcher remarked on the enthusiasm of the audience.

President of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Esquimalt Branch 172, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., Mrs. Francis Fairless, requests all willing to sell poppies in Esquimalt on Saturday, November 8, to send their names, with phone numbers to her at 490 Foster Street or phone G 8869.

Ross McDonald, teacher at Burnside School, reported to city police Friday afternoon that a wallet, owned by student James Carvath, 420 Hillside, had been stolen. The wallet was reportedly taken from the teacher's desk. It contained $3.50.

John Hines, Vancouver trade unionist and member of the trade union delegation which has just returned from a visit to Russia, will describe his trip here October 29 at 8 p.m. at the Williams Building, 749 Broughton Street. Sponsor of the public meeting is the International Friendship Committee.

Defense Bunker $40,000 Voted

Order-in-Council Provides Needed Cash From B.C.'s Consolidated Revenue

British Columbia's civil defense control centre, to be built under a proposed auditorium at Mount Newton High School, will cost $40,000.

CITY SOLDIER INJURED ON KOREA FRONT

A Victoria soldier, Sgt. Thomas Scouler, who formerly lived at 2739 Graham, has been wounded in action in Korea, an Ottawa dispatch reported. His wife resides at 64 Ypres Boulevard, Camp Petawawa, Ont.

Backing Fuel Truck Painfully Crushes Man Guiding Driver

Crushed against a basement door by a backing fuel truck, Albert H. Wood, 38, of 2204 Lydia, was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital by city police this morning suffering an injured back and possible fractured ribs.

His condition was reported as "good" by hospital attendants at press time. Police said Wood was guiding a fuel truck, being backed by Lyle Norman Foster, 3440 Seaton, into the basement garage of Alfred Collett's home at 2215 Shakespeare at 9.15.

Wood was pinned against the corner of one of the open basement doors, police said.

Old Times Block's Renovation Likely

The former home of the Daily Times, since 1910 a landmark at the corner of Fort and Broad Streets, may be completely renovated and modernized for rental as an office building.

Wade & Stockhill, architects, have called for tenders to reconstruct the interior of the building, providing five floors of office space.

Ker & Stephenson Ltd., agents for G. Maxwell Bell, owner, state that if the tenders are "not unreasonable" the work will be undertaken.

TENDERS CALLED

Greater Victoria School Board announced Friday that tenders have been called for construction of Macdonald Park elementary school. Closing date for tenders is Nov. 13.

An order-in-council, approving a special warrant to take the money from consolidated revenue, has been passed by the cabinet.

The government recently announced a stepped-up civil defense program. The control centre will be constructed in the form of a concrete bunker and will be the nerve centre for co-ordination of all fire-fighting organizations in the province.

Arrangements are now being made to implement the agreement with the federal government whereby civil-defense volunteer workers will be compensated within the framework of the Workmen's Compensation Act if they are injured during civil defense duties in peacetime.

The province has decided to spend $132,616 in the next year on civil defense—a sum which will be matched by the federal government.

Municipal defense organizations will be getting more financial assistance from the province. The provincial civil defense organization will make a complete survey of all fire-fighting facilities in the province.

Dr. Faurey Invited To Stay in Office

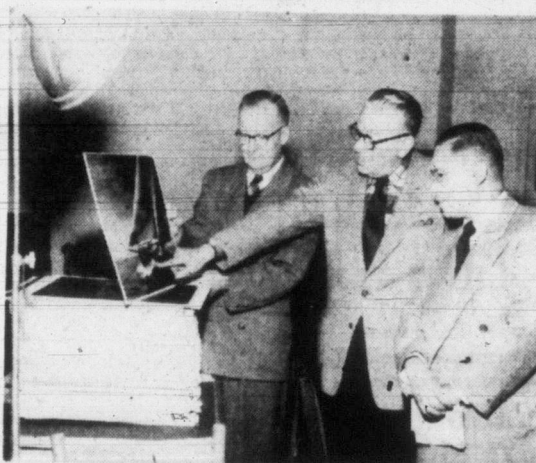

Deputy education minister Dr. F. T. Faurey, whose retirement date is Nov. 30, has been asked by the government to continue in office until June 30, 1953.

The extension has been approved by order-in-council. Education Minister Mrs. Tilly Rolston explained that the deputy's retirement date fell in the middle of the school term, and it is felt advisable he stay in office until the completion of the full school year.

Copter Visits City

A Royal Canadian Air Force helicopter hovered over Victoria for several hours Friday and attracted wide attention. The copter was working with H.M.C.S. Athabaskan, carrying out radar tests.

F.O. Casey Liness and Cpl. Peter Brodie brought the "windmill" over from Sea Island Airport, Vancouver.

1,000 Entries at Salon Of International Artists

Final judging of more than 1,000 entries in the 12th Victoria International Salon of Photography commenced this morning. Judges are: Hugh W. Frith, Vancouver; A. Wilfred Johns, Victoria; and Chao-Chen Yang, Seattle.

More than 30 countries are represented at the salon, scheduled at the Empress Hotel from Nov. 16 to 23, and 234 color transparencies have been chosen for exhibition in various centres.

Thunderbird awards have been made to Louise Agnew, Chicago; Rev. H. Bielenberg, Oil City; Dr. M. A. Chantler, Toronto; Bruce R. Davis, Salt Lake City; H. W. Greenwood, Hollywood; Katharine McGregor, Toronto; D. A. Murray, East Orange, N. J.; Robert W. L. Potts, San Francisco, and Sandra Thaw, Washington.

BIG BULLS BAGGED IN MOOSE SAFARI

John Roach, Carl Carlson and Alex Murdoch returned to the city today with three bull moose they bagged in Cariboo's Vanderhof country during a 10-day big-game hunting trip.

The moose attracted much public attention as the hunters dropped off at Joe Gibault Ltd., View Street, to tell of their trip.

An expert clay pigeon marksman, was only wounded with the first shot. The bull was charging Roach when he dropped it with a shot at 40 yards. They also bagged a cougar.

The reported moose were scarce, the Cash Creek checking station reporting few successful hunters. The hunters did not see any buck, but some does, reported the country too dry for good hunting. They saw lots of ducks.

Civil Service Moves to Cut Work Week

Resolution Framed for Early Presentation To Cabinet Would Protect Take-Home Pay

Provincial government will be asked by 11,000 B.C. civil servants to institute the five-day work week without reduction in take-home pay.

B.C. Government Employees Association, meeting in ninth annual convention at Empress Hotel today, instructed its bargaining committee to:

"Make strong representations to the provincial government to institute the five-day work week with a maximum eight-hour day, 40-hour week, without increase in hours worked per week and without reduction in take-home pay."

The resolution, embodying about a dozen on the same subject from various parts of the province, passed unanimously.

EXAMPLES SHOWN

The five-day week was requested on grounds that a "majority of larger employers of B.C., including cities of Vancouver and Victoria, surrounding municipalities and chartered banks in the same areas are now working satisfactorily on a five-day work week."

The association said also, Ontario adopted the five-day week on a "test basis" and the premier of that province stated results were satisfactory.

Fact that the Workmen's Compensation Board has adopted a five-day week, was also raised.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

The 120 delegates discussed the matter in private, following passage of a motion to exclude the press.

C. K. Morison, Victoria delegate, urged that the press be permitted to attend on grounds that anything affecting civil servants was of interest to the public of the province.

The resolutions committee felt the matter "should be ironed out among ourselves" since confusion arose last year when the govern-

The keynote speech will be given by Robert J. Filberg of the Comox Logging and Railway Co. Ltd., Ladysmith.

Others to attend are J. C. Sheasgreen, Ladysmith; Rae L. Johnson, Prince Rupert; E. W. Bassett, assistant chief forester, Victoria; W. McMahon, Vancouver; John Liersh, Vancouver; Charles Dunham, Port Alberni, and D. B. Taylor, district forester, Vancouver.

ASK The TIMES

Q. When were mirrors introduced into England? Shakespeare puts one in the hands of Richard II.

A. Mirrors of various kinds were in use in ancient times. Glass mirrors were found in Graeco-Roman tombs in Egypt. They may have been brought into Britain by the Romans. A closer approach to the mirror we know today was made in Europe in the thirteenth century by pasting sheets of tinfoil on the back of glass. Richard's abdication speech, during which he breaks the mirror, was delivered in 1399.

Q. Is the big restaurant in Toronto's Union Station still known as The Oak Room? J.H.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know of any doctor in Victoria who gives the treatment known as the "Abrams Box," an electrical treatment? Mrs. B.K.

A. No.

A PREVIEW FOR CONCERT-GOERS

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

Mix fairy tales and music and you get a heady concoction that makes your senses spin like Oriental perfume. You get, for instance, "Scheherazade," which leads off the Victoria Symphony Orchestra program Monday.

This is music that talks—in the sweet trembling accents of the inventive sultana and the ominous growl of the sultan; in the fearful clamor of the storm and the sighing murmur of the sea.

Saskatchewan—the wheat province—gives us George Haddad for the second half of the program. It might have given Haddad to Hollywood with equal success, but the handsome Canadian pianist preferred exploiting his 10 fleet digits and his musical intelligence, rather than his striking appearance.

York Theatre, company and audience hilariously scrambled together, serve up their comic brew for one more night only, so if you haven't seen it and you enjoy being made right at home with the cast, better be on hand Monday.

Tuesday they take down the mask of comedy and hang up—well not Tragedy exactly. Anyday, they're going to smooth out that big grin and provide us with something that is guaranteed to fasten us in our seats for a couple of hours. Its ominous title—"Thunder Rock."

Do you like to munch to music? Good substantial music that nourishes your spirit as you nourish your body?

along to the Arts Centre, Moss Take your sandwiches and hop Street, on Friday. Lunch-hour programs of recorded music are a regular weekly feature in the gallery, Stravinsky, this week. Oh, yes; and you can get tea or coffee to wash it down—the sandwich, I mean, not Stravinsky.

(BB) "DUEL AT SILVER CREEK" (Odeon): This, perhaps, isn't the shootingest, hard-riding, est western you ever saw, but it still gives you enough vicarious thrills to be worth the evening and the admission.

Personally, I liked it very much. Mainly because it lacked much of the phony "dramatic" and flailing histrionics usually associated with the gunsmoke and the people who play in them. As the hot-tempered youth who saw his father shot down by claim-jumping desperadoes, Audie Murphy plays a fair-to-middlin' marshal's deputy. Although personally I prefer my hard-riding rannies to be a trifle more gaunt of face and wirier of build. As a matter of fact Marshal Steve McNally, whose trigger finger has been injured in a shooting fray, is more my type of guy.

But the best lift to "Duel at Silver Creek" came via the ladies. Instead of the usual and expected poke-bonnetted crowd Universal International produces too pips. One (Faith Domergue) is about the meanest female critter you ever laid eyes on. While Susan Cabot, a rip-snortin', gun-slingin' gal in jeans, is cute as all get out.

The technicolor and sets are excellent, so is the photography. And if you like the horse operas as a mode of forgetting the atomic bomb race and Canada's new cost-of-living index then "Duel at Silver Creek" should pretty well fill the bill.

History of Indian Arts Traced From Early Days

The Indian Arts and Welfare Society heard noted city art teacher, George Sinclair, trace the stages of art among the coast tribes, Thursday night, at the Arts Centre.

The early Russian fort and shipyard at Sitka, Alaska, made a profound impression on Indian art, he said. Prior to that time their art had been more primitive but with the white man's tools and training there was a greater development of totem pole carving. The early Indian's desire to add to his prestige in the face of the newcomers led to the origination among the coast tribes of silver working, said Mr. Sinclair. Totem pole carving reached its peak with the Haida totem of 1890-1890. Since then the art has declined.

Pressed Powder Solves Many Make-Up Problems

By PENNY SAVER

You may be a woman who can not take the extra time in the morning required for proper application of make-up foundation and powder, or it may be you can never get used to the feel of base and powder on your face.

If you belong in either category, pressed powder was made just for you. It requires no foundation or other powder over it. It takes less time to do your face by this method, though it should never be done without good lighting and attention to detail. If you want to do a little camouflaging of a poor feature or play up a good one, have more than one shade of pressed powder.

Bring out prominent cheekbones or a round, firm chin with a powder shade lighter than your skin tone. If you want to shorten your nose or need to flatten a bulging forehead, use a shade darker than your skin tone.

As light plays on your face, an illusion of more perfect features will be created through different values of light and dark. Some women use three shades, one to match their skins, a darker shade to play down features, and a lighter shade to bring out other features.

A famous manufacturer has just put on the market a pressed powder which is particularly good for dry skins. Loose powder moulded with a cream base into a solid cake form. It comes in a very attractive vanity case with powder puff motif. There are several shades to choose from.

The greatest advantage of this type of powder is that it won't create a mess on your dressing table or in your handbag, as there can be no spillage or dust clouds.

Saw something extremely different today, and when I say "extremely" I mean it.

Have you ever seen a tartan canister set? Well, if you haven't you have no idea what you're missing. The set that I came upon was called "Lassie," appropriately enough.

Now for the prices. They were as reasonable as any I have seen. Canisters were priced from $1.29 to $1.49; bread tin was $1.59 to $1.79; step-on cans, $1.98; cake tin, $1.39, and tall waste paper baskets were $1.49.

But it would brighten up even the dullest kitchen.

WHY GROW OLD?

'Legs a Little Too Large,'
She Weighs 210 Pounds

Most women are not satisfied with their figures—they want to look like Joyce Holden, above.

When a woman is 15 or 20 or minimized. However after pounds overweight she usually knows it. However, I remember one letter which came to me. It said, "I am five feet two inches tall and weigh 210 pounds. I have a nice figure but my legs are a little too large." I envy her that vibrant spirit.

Then we have the other extreme. Many times when measuring women who have truly lovely figures I find that they are unhappy about a small pad of fat over the hip bone or worry because one breast is a little smaller than the other. In fact I do not believe I have ever had a woman in my class who was entirely satisfied with her silhouette.

We women are critical of ourselves and I think that is a wonderful thing if it isn't taken too far. It leads to self-improvement. Every woman should improve her appearance as much as is possible and today most defects in beauty can be corrected.

TODAY'S RECIPE

ROLLED OATS COOKIES

One cup sifted all-purpose flour or 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons pastry flour, 1/2 teaspoon baking soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1 1/2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats, 1/2 cup shortening, 1 egg, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix and sift flour, soda, salt and cinnamon. Add brown sugar and rolled oats, mixing well. Cut in shortening with a pastry blender or two knives until the mixture resembles fine crumbs. Add beaten egg and vanilla, blending well. Roll out 1/4 inch thick and cut with a 2-inch cookie cutter or form in rolls, wrap in waxed paper, chill thoroughly and slice. Bake on an ungreased cookie sheet in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., for about 15 minutes. Yield: 3 1/2 dozen cookies.

Note: Cookies may also be dropped on an ungreased cookie sheet from a spoon and pressed flat with a fork.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

By DAWN VAN NORMAN

Fluid softness of line, having gained a general fashion acceptance, is at its best in the many new daytime crepes.

As a welcome change from the tailored severity of a suit, these new crepes offer flattering femininity. They take to gentle, ladylike accessories—the soft kid pump, the curving, feathered hat, the longer glove and the smart suede bag.

They fit into many wardrobes, a fact not true of all fashions. They are right for the dressy days in the life of a housewife. They meet numerous occasions and meet them well for the career girl, the college girl, the woman who combines a job with home-making.

Shown, left, a subtly-draped rayon-and-acetate crepe with high surplice neckline and slim sleeves. Cumberbund is in the same satin used to make the buttons and to bind the neck.

A second dress in the same fabric, right, gains surface interest through its all-over tuck-ing. Velvet is used for small, pointed collar and for ribbon that runs under tucks at the hipline, creating the low-waistline look.

AS WE LIVE

You Must Exert Yourself To Make Real Friends

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

You can't just sit back and wait to have people ask you to be friends. The trouble with the girl who wrote this letter is that she isn't doing her share:

(Q)—"I'm very lonely. I get plenty of chances to correct this but I back away. Why? Because I'm afraid. I live in a town but don't participate in its activities. I go to a school in another town which is hard to get to. So I don't have any girl friends from either town. Please help me in this difficult problem."

(A)—This is a problem you will have to solve yourself. I can give you some suggestions but working them out will be your own job.

In the first place, is it necessary to go to school in another town? Isn't there a school at home you could attend? What do the other girls your age do about their schooling?

If the town where you attend school is hard to get to, it means you'll miss doing things with your classmates after school, over week-ends, or during holidays.

In your own town, you can't "belong" either, because you're not in school with other girls your age. They have their circle of friends, made up from their classmates.

Think seriously about this problem and then try to make arrangements to change schools. You will get a good education in any school if you apply yourself.

Then, after you change, go out of your way to win friends. Invite the girls to your home, suggest activities they will enjoy, and take an active part in school affairs. Unless you develop friendships now, you will find yourself very lonely when school days are over.

Convention Tea Opens Series of Social Events

Wives of delegates to British Columbia Government Employees' Association two-day convention at Empress Hotel are enjoying a full social agenda. Among those attending a tea at the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon were, left to right, Mrs. F. Carr, Mrs. H. Livesey, Mrs. R. Aitken, Creston, and Mrs. H. A. Carney, Mrs. G. Spring, Mrs. Clair Scott and Mrs. J. A. Sargent, all of this city.

Newly Formed Altrusa Club Installs Officers at Dinner

Formation of Altrusa Club in Victoria was completed last evening with the initiation dinner held in Prince Louise room, Empress Hotel.

Mrs. Verne Forsman, Bremerton, Wash., field representative of 10th district, welcomed guests, and Mrs. Ann Clark, Vancouver, vice-governor, initiated charter members.

They were Mesdames W. N. Chant, C. W. Gordon, J. E. Hibberd, H. Hurn, M. Barter, Lt. Col. J. B. Kennedy, S. Lumby, E. L. MacKenzie, C. E. Morris, E. Queale, W. S. Slack, R. Thistle, T. O. Walton, I. H. Williams, D. B. Hudson, Misses G. Arnold, E. S. Atkins, Mona Jewell, Gertrude MacCaulay, Lynn Pitkethley, Mary Richmond, Jessie Robinson, Eva Schildemeyer, Marjorie Siddell and Eleanor Yager.

Welcome from 10th district was given by Dorothea Taylor, Seattle, governor. Installation of officers was performed by Mrs. Dorothea Plant, Nanaimo. Officers are Lt. Col. Joane Kennedy president; Joan Williams, vice-president; Eva Schildemeyer, corresponding secretary; Mary Richmond recording secretary, and Alice Maud Gordon, treasurer. Directors are Helen Huff, Avis Walton and Mona Jewell.

Trixie Kyles welcomed the Victoria club on behalf of Vancouver group and Mrs. Ruby Grant, Puyallup, Wash., extension coordinator, brought greetings to new club.

They were Mesdames W. N. Chant, C. W. Gordon, J. E. Hibberd, H. Hurn, M. Barter, Lt. Col. J. B. Kennedy, S. Lumby, E. L. MacKenzie, C. E. Morris, E. Queale, W. S. Slack, R. Thistle, T. O. Walton, I. H. Williams, D. B. Hudson, Misses G. Arnold, E. S. Atkins, Mona Jewell, Gertrude MacCaulay, Lynn Pitkethley, Mary Richmond, Jessie Robinson, Eva Schildemeyer, Marjorie Siddell and Eleanor Yager.

It was a real adventure for Mrs. Downie and her 13-year-old daughter, Catriona, from the moment Mrs. Downie accepted the cable offer of the principalship. Within three weeks she had sold their home and they were on their way. Within little more than a month they had taken the giant stride that spanned an ocean and a continent; had left behind an old life and had already taken up the strands of a new one.

"I have always wanted to come to Canada," Mrs. Downie says. Even though, as an M.A. of Glasgow University, she had an established and successful career in her own country, the Dominion had an irresistible glamour for her.

GIGANTIC SCALE Born and bred on the north coast of Scotland, Mrs. Downie says: "The scenery there is lovely, but I have never seen anything so beautiful as this. The colors, the sea and islands, the foliage! And everything on such a gigantic scale!"

And here again, a touch of the fable enters, for the Scottish lady finds not only sea, mountains and terrain colossal, but flora, fauna and people all amaze her equally.

"Men and women are taller and even children are bigger," she declares. "I couldn't believe it when one of your robins came hopping around the garden, and as for the spiders—ugh!"

She comments with awe upon the size and quantity of the apples. "It breaks my heart to trample through apples, rotting on the ground," she tells you, "when give in return all that I can, in at home we have to pay about two shillings a pound for them."

And there is no doubting the value of that way. For the rich resources of her gifts and training as well as her vivid and warm personality, Marion Downie will be a welcome addition to educational circles in this city.

Christmas Bazaar—Luxton and Happy Valley Women's Institute met recently in Luxton Hall, Mrs. J. Flatman presiding. Reported catering for fall fair netted institute $39.32. Delegates, Mesdames W. Allen and A. Mills, reported on South Vancouver Island conference held at Lake Hill. Collection of used clothing will be made for U.N.I.C.E.F. Donations may be taken to home of Mrs. E. Middleton, Old Luxton Road, or to next meeting. A contribution was made to Solarium in honor of a late member.

Colfax Rebekah Lodge, Tuesday at 7.30. Social evening.

Couple Wed Last Evening To Make Home in Ottawa

Bridal attendants gowned in daffodil yellow and carrying chrysanthemums in tones of bronze and maize created a lovely contrast for Barbara Isabelle Oakley, who wore pure white for her wedding Friday evening to Pilot Officer Ronald J. McCormick.

Scene of the ceremony was First United Church, where Rev. M. A. J. Waters officiated before an altar banked with chrysanthemums and fern.

The petite bride chose a gown fashioned of net over satin, with lace points extending from the waist in a sunburst effect. The lace bodice was complemented by a matching jacket, featuring lily-point sleeves, a pointed collar trimmed with seed pearls and buttons down the front. Her only jewelry was pearl earrings. Given in marriage by her father, the bride carried yellow roses on a prayer book, from which cascaded white streamers, knotted with yellow pinnocchio roses.

Ideal dresses of net and taffeta with tiny boleros were worn by bridesmaids Mrs. Herbert Edmonds and Mrs. Norman Sanders. In their hair were bandeaux of yellow taffeta with shirred net and rhinestone edging. Miss Janice Oakley, five-year-old niece of the bride, was a dainty flower girl in daffodil yellow, styled with scalloped net neckline. She carried a basket of deep-toned chrysanthemums.

Norman Sanders was best man and ushers, Herbert Edmonds, and William Oakley, brother of the bride.

During the signing of the register Miss Jean McCormick, sister of the groom, sang "Till We Meet Again," accompanied by organist Mrs. J. Roberto Wood.

A silver airplane on a plastic pedestal topped the three-tiered wedding cake, which was cut by the newlyweds at the reception in Oak Bay Beach Hotel. The

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Austin Brown To Spend Honeymoon in California

Following a quiet wedding this afternoon in St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church, Esquimalt, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Austin Brown departed on a honeymoon trip to California.

The bride is the former Elsie Alison England Thompson, daughter of Mr. Edmund E. Thompson, Linden Avenue, and the late Mrs. Thompson. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Brown, Uplands Road.

Rev. J. A. Roberts officiated for the popular couple before an altar banked with masses of chrysanthemums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, entered the church to traditional Wagnerian music. She was charming in a ballerina-length gown of white net over gleaming satin. Her lace redingote was complemented with a demure Juliet cap, detailed with pearls, from which cascaded a short veil. The bridal bouquet was of white chrysanthemums.

Maid of honor, Miss Patricia Joy, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Susan Brown, chose gowns of forget-me-not blue over satin, which were styled similarly to the bride's. They carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums.

John C. Foote was best man and ushering were Herbert P. R. Brown and Donald Aitken.

Oak Bay Beach Hotel was scene of a reception for the newlyweds at which Rev. Roberts proposed the toast.

For travelling, Mrs. Brown donned a striking blue two-piece ensemble. Colors in her tailored check coat were echoed in her brown accessories and gardenia corsage.

Election—Mrs. Dave Lewis was unanimously elected president of Victoria Opt-Mrs. Club at a meeting held recently. Other officers are Mrs. G. F. Green, past president; Mrs. S. F. Jones, vice-president; Mrs. G. Poupore, secretary; Mrs. R. D. Hornia, treasurer, and Mrs. W. Campbell, house convener. It was reported that during the last term $50 was donated to the surplus food stall, $20 was spent in outfitting needy boys and sending two girls to summer camp, and $10 sent in answer to appeal for medical assistance. Mrs. Harry Rennie, organizer of the local club, gave a short talk on the history and aims of the Opt-Mrs. Club and a brief report on activities of other district clubs. It was decided to hold one regular meeting each month and additional work meetings.

Alumnae to Hold Bazaar Wednesday

Convenor of bazaar being held by Alumnae Association of Royal Jubilee Hospital on Wednesday from 2 to 6 in the Nurses' Home is Mrs. D. MacLoud. Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett will officially open the affair, and Miss M. Plunkett, president, will welcome guests. Mrs. D. Pite is tea convenor and 20 student nurses will be servitors.

THE "Ever-ready" Flash—This aerial battle was tight & terrific, a dog fight over the broad Pacific. An American pilot, keen & fit, suddenly said, "This is it." Thru crazy spirals & dizzy roll, he vainly fought to get control. Yet strangely enough he had no fear, when he knew full well he couldn't steer. Somehow or other his plane came down, landed right side up, NOT upside down. He was still unafraid as he leaped from his craft, to the safety of his rubber life raft. For 30 hours he drifted there, out in the middle of the vast no-where. A reconnaissance flyer was miles away, searching the ocean the following day. Now it was dusk, then a final tack, he knew he'd better be getting back. Yet something seemed to be urging him on, & now the sun no longer shone. Then . . . ALL-OF-A-SUDDEN this light did show, way off to starboard on the ocean below. He open throttled, his exhaust red hot, then he kept circling, over the spot; maintaining his position, circling tight, by watching beneath the flashes of light. He radioed the facts as he'droned away, soon a P.P. boat was on its way. One of the rescuers, standing aft, & helping the pilot from his yellow raft, said—"I guess you were grateful, a flash-light you had, otherwise, it could have been bad. Our reconnaissance plane, in the dusky dark, saw your light, pinpointed the mark." Then answered the lad, who'd not been dismayed, "I DIDN'T have a flashlight. I JUST SAT THERE & PRAYED."

"If I take the wings in the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, even there shall Thy hand lead me, and Thy right hand shall hold me; if I say, surely the darkness shall cover me; ever the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from Thee; but the night shineth as the day; the darkness and the light are both alike to Thee." (Psalms 139)

FABULOUS FANNY

The life story of FANNY BRICE

Her life was a stirring saga of stunts to stardom. But with the dizzying heights of Ziegfeld glory came tragedy, resembling the lyrics of her song, "My Man." For Fanny's deepest devotion was given to a faithless swindler. Read the biography of Fanny Brice, known to millions as "Baby Snooks," beginning now in the Ladies Home Journal.

The "Ever-ready" Flash—

This aerial battle was tight & terrific, a dog fight over the broad Pacific. An American pilot, keen & fit, suddenly said, "This is it." Thru crazy spirals & dizzy roll, he vainly fought to get control. Yet strangely enough he had no fear, when he knew full well he couldn't steer. Somehow or other his plane came down, landed right side up, NOT upside down. He was still unafraid as he leaped from his craft, to the safety of his rubber life raft. For 30 hours he drifted there, out in the middle of the vast no-where. A reconnaissance flyer was miles away, searching the ocean the following day. Now it was dusk, then a final tack, he knew he'd better be getting back. Yet something seemed to be urging him on, & now the sun no longer shone. Then . . . ALL-OF-A-SUDDEN this light did show, way off to starboard on the ocean below. He open throttled, his exhaust red hot, then he kept circling, over the spot; maintaining his position, circling tight, by watching beneath the flashes of light. He radioed the facts as he'droned away, soon a P.P. boat was on its way. One of the rescuers, standing aft, & helping the pilot from his yellow raft, said—"I guess you were grateful, a flash-light you had, otherwise, it could have been bad. Our reconnaissance plane, in the dusky dark, saw your light, pinpointed the mark." Then answered the lad, who'd not been dismayed, "I DIDN'T have a flashlight. I JUST SAT THERE & PRAYED."

IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES

By RAY SIDAWAY

Rebel Randall, star of "America Calling," will place her two phone calls to the battleship Missouri, somewhere in the Pacific, and to the air base, Casablanca, North Africa, on Sunday's program.

Baritone Tony Martin will be Rebel's guest star and will musically salute a serviceman with a request number.

There's trouble ahead for a Hollywood librarian when emcee Art Linkletter of "People Are Funny," sends a contestant to the library on Tuesday's show.

Link's instructions to the contestant is to tear out the last few pages of several mystery books, replacing them with his own version of how the story should end.

which shall be forfeited if the party tending declines to enter into the contract which called upon it to do so.

Cheques will be returned to unsuccessful bidders as soon as possible after tenders are opened. If a contract is awarded, the deposit cheque of the successful bidder will be returned to him upon receipt of an acceptable Bond in the amount of fifty per cent (50%) of the Contract price in accordance with the Specifications and Conditions of the Contract.

Tenders must be submitted on the forms supplied by the Architects, addressed to the undersigned and delivered to the office of the Architects not later than twelve (12) noon on Thursday, November 13th, 1952.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Secretary-Treasurer,
Board of School Trustees,
School District No. 61 (Greater Victoria).

TENDERS FOR HOLLY CROPS

AT ROCKY POINT

Sealed tenders will be received by the Department of National Defence if posted prior to 10th November, 1952, and marked for the attention of the National Secretary, Ottawa, Canada, for the right to harvest the crop of holly in 1953 on Sections 44 and 46, south of Rocky Point, Vancouver Island. The cropping is to be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of a naval representative and in proper manner to avoid injuring the trees. It is essential that there be no interference with any naval construction that may be in progress. The highest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

THE CAINE MUTINY

It was tough going but when he graduated as an ensign in the U.S. Navy, Willie Seward Keith, considered all he had gone through at Reserve Midshipmen School well worth it. He was a typical product of the U.S. Navy and in the night club he had alien interests as his passion was he recognized the girl between his own highly polished background and that of May, the daughter of Italian immigrants.

Pointed to the U.S. Coast, a minor sweeper, Willie got to Honolulu to find his ship going. He was transferred to the office of Captain Matson, who greeted him cordially.
"Have they put you to work yet, Keith?"
"Sir, on reconsidering, I'd like to fly out to look for the Caine, if I may."

The captain's face fell. "Oh?
What's the matter? They give you some rugged coding detail?"
"No, sir."
"I've already told the admiral you're set here. He was extremely pleased."
"Sir, if I may say so, it just doesn't seem like fighting the war —playing plan for the admiral."
A hard distant look came over the captain's features. "There's plenty of work to do in this establishment. You'll find that a shore billet is as honorable as any other."

"I don't doubt it, sir."
"You were placed in the officer pool at your own request."
"Yes, sir, I know, but—"
"Your orders have been put through and sent to the Bureau.
I see no reason to countermand them. Your request is denied."
The captain picked up a paper before him and put on his glasses.
"Thank you, sir," said Willie,
and left.

And so Willie stayed at Pearl Harbor, decoding messages which told of great actions around Rendova and Munda, of the victorious night battle at Vella Lavella, and of huge preparations for further invasions. Often he came upon the name of the Caine in despatches showing her in the thick of the operations. And across the world the Allies smashed into Sicily and Italy, and Mussolini fell. Meantime Willie played the piano for the admiral.

TRAVEL PAYS OFF

Finance Boss Abbott Shows Theory Proof

Federal cabinet ministers should travel more, finance chief Douglas Abbott told a jam-packed meeting at Liberal headquarters Friday night—and related an amusing story on himself to make his point.
"In the 1949 election, just after my 'sunshine budget,' Jimmy Gardiner invited me out to Saskatchewan to campaign.
"I had taken the tax off soft drinks."
"On a muddy country road we had three flat tires. At a service station we decided to have a bottle of pop. Two small boys were inside, with the same idea."
"Just for fun, Ted Davis, who was driving us, turned to the boys and said: 'Are you happy that the tax has been taken off pop?'"
"You bet," said the kids.
"Do you know who took it off?" Ted asked.
"Sure, Mr. Abbott."
"Naturally, I was delighted that 'way out here, in this remote Saskatchewan outpost, the youth of Canada knew who the great men are. (Laughter.)"
"Then Ted went a step too far," he said, "I have a surprise for you. This man with me is Mr. Abbott."
"The kids looked at me skeptically. Then one of them snorted: 'If that's Doug Abbott,
I'm Mackenzie King.'"
The moral of this story is:
Don't talk too much. Pride goeth before a fall."

Owners Tender 7½ Cents
After Refusing Conciliation Award

By DON INGHAM

Shipyard workers in Victoria appeared willing to continue wage negotiations despite employers' rejection of a conciliation board award.

The operators have made a counter-offer. At a mass meeting this morning in Britannia Legion Hall called by the Victoria Joint Shipyard Council, the 250 men present appeared lukewarm toward the company offer, made Friday night, for a 7½-cent hourly wage increase and half payment on Medical Services Association premiums.

Onus for acceptance or rejection of the offer, however, was placed directly on the 11 unions concerned in the negotiations.

"This meeting is to acquaint workers with the facts of negotiations," said Fred Bevis, chairman. "It does not take the place of your union meetings, and you are not here to take a strike vote. Decisions must be made by your own unions, which have the bargaining rights."

Mr. Bevis summarized negotiations here, high points being a conciliation board recommendation for a 12½-cent wage increase, and the companies' Friday night offer.

It was pointed out that negotiators for Vancouver's shipyard unions will recommend to their membership acceptance of an offer identical with that made here.

"That may weaken our position," said one delegate. "I'm convinced we'll get the 12½ cents if we go after it," said another.

The chairman pointed out that local unions had wanted to nego-

Canada's New Ambassador
Home Today

Victoria's R. W. Mayhew, recently named Canadian ambassador to Japan, arrived in the city this afternoon from Ottawa.

It is Mr. and Mrs. Mayhew's first visit home since the veteran parliamentarian's new appointment.

Mr. Mayhew, Liberal M.P. for Victoria since 1937 and fisheries minister since 1948, is expected to leave soon for his post in Japan. His appointment takes effect November 15.

Mr. Mayhew is the first post-war ambassador to Japan. Arthur Menzies, a career diplomat, has been heading the Canadian mission to Japan.

The Victorian's appointment, rounding out a 15-year career in federal politics, has delighted the Japanese, according to Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Mr. Mayhew took part in the conference which settled the peace treaty with Japan.

Russia Planned
Korea—AchesonU.S. Secretary of State Tells
U.N. Reds Schemed Since 1945

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 25—Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, accused Russia Friday night of deliberately planning and carrying on the Korean war. He warned United Nations delegates that the U.N. "cannot buy peace at the price of honor."

Acheson said Russia began preparing the North Koreans for war as early as 1945 and carried their preparations down through the provision of equipment, the transfer of units from the Chinese Red Army and the attachment of military advisers, "beginning at the battalion level and including the general headquarters where the plans for the invasion of South Korea were worked out."

Speaking before the General Assembly's political committee, Acheson asked the 60-member assembly to approve the conduct of the U.N. war effort. He introduced a resolution—backed by 20 countries including Canada—urging the Communists to accept an armistice on the U.N. terms.

Acheson's long speech was a detailed review of the Korean war, all that led up to it, and the drawn-out attempts to end it. The Secretary of State said the U.S. would do everything in its power to achieve an "honest armistice" if the Communists wanted one.

"But if this is not the case," he warned, "and if the resistance must go on, then we shall have to examine our position and our ability to carry that resistance forward."

Some delegations interpreted this as an indication that if the Communists turn down the armistice appeal, the U.S. may ask U.N. members for further military support and possibly reprisals against Communist China.

Acheson told the committee the U.S., acting as the unified command for the U.N., would never agree to the Communist demand that all prisoners must be repatriated, regardless of their desires.

Heavy Damage
Quebec Blaze

ST. JOHNS, Quebec, Oct. 25 (BUP)—Fire raced through two buildings in St. Johns, Quebec, today causing damage estimated at $450,000.

The blaze destroyed the two and three story buildings that housed several shops and two upstairs rooming houses. No one was injured.

Several tenants, unable to make their way through the smoke-filled stairways, were rescued by firemen who ran ladders to the rooming house windows.

Former Nazi General
Stays in Jail—Claxton

OTTAWA, Oct. 25 (CP)—Defense Minister Claxton said today it is not true that the Canadian government will shortly review the case of Kurt Meyer, German general now serving a life sentence in western Germany for his part in the shooting of Canadian prisoners.

"That's a good invention," Mr. Claxton said of the report, published in Toronto. "It's not true."

The Toronto story associated the reported review of the case with the general Allied policy of amnesty which has resulted recently in the release of several high-ranking Germans.

Kurt Meyer, one of the youngest SS-generals on the western front, was sent to a Maritime jail after sentence at the war trials.

Over a year ago, stories were circulated that two Halifax lawyers were "arranging" his release on the grounds that he had been incorrectly sentenced. This was subsequently denied by the defense department.

SENT TO GERMANY

(However, Meyer was transferred to a jail in Germany.)

Earlier this year Canadian Press correspondent Doug How, on a visit to Germany, called at Meyer's home and to his surprise found the young general on "week-end leave" with his wife and children.

How's scoop on this story aroused debate in the House of Commons. It was cited as a prize-winner in the National Newspaper Awards in Toronto this spring.

TWO RELEASED

In Heidelberg, Germany, today U.S. authorities released war criminal Herman Giesler, 53, from Landsberg Prison, Bavaria. Giesler had been condemned to life imprisonment in 1947 for participating in wartime atrocities at the Muehlhof concentration camp. Last year, his sentence was reduced first to 25 years and then to 12.

Giesler's release follows that of Max Wielen, a war criminal held by British authorities in Werl Prison, North Rhine-Westphalia. The ailing, 69-year-old German had been sentenced to life imprisonment in 1947 for taking part in the execution of 50 British and Commonwealth air force officers including six Canadians on Hitler's direct orders. The officers had been rounded up following a break from notorious Stalag Luft III at Sagan, Silesia, in 1944.

Wielen, head of the Breslau criminal police at the time, left prison Friday. His original sentence had been reduced first to 21 years and later to 15.

Lost 18 Hours,
Deaf Child
Found Safe

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP)—A five-year-old deaf mute was found safe today after wandering 18 hours in bear-infested Muskoka district muskash.

Patsy Temple, a ward of the Children's Aid Society, was found in the woods two miles from her home near this summer resort town.

Jim Johnson said he came upon the girl huddled against two rocks which partly shielded her from the cold.

About 125 police officers and neighbors spent most of the night looking for the girl.

When found, she was dressed in a short coat and overalls. It was 32 degrees above zero here Friday night.

Civil Servants
Re-Elect Head

Carl Hauk of New Westminster was re-elected president of the B.C. Government Employees' Association at the organization's ninth annual convention at Empress Hotel today. He was elected over W. F. Oliver of Victoria.

The convention instructed the bargaining committee to press the provincial government for three weeks' vacation with pay after three years, instead of the present 10.

Move was sought on grounds that other provincial governments grant the "privilege." See story on move for five-day week on Page 13.

444 DEAD—460 MISSING

New Typhoon Bears
Down on Philippines

MANILA, Oct. 25 (AP)—A new typhoon bore down on the Philippines today even before officials had finished counting the toll from the worst tropical storm in 50 years.

The count from Typhoon Trix, which hit southern Luzon Island Tuesday and Wednesday, reached 444 dead, 460 missing and 27 injured.

A Philippines Red Cross spokesman said the death toll might climb to 600 or more as late reports trickle in from isolated areas.

The new typhoon was churning 700 miles east of Leyte Island at 2 p.m.

The weather bureau said it was moving at a faster clip than Typhoon Trix and along the same path. Preliminary reports indicated it packed a more vicious punch than its predecessor, which hit southern Luzon with winds in excess of 135 miles an hour. Winds in the new typhoon, called Wilma, were estimated at 150 miles an hour. It was moving northwest at 15 miles an hour.

At its present pace and patch, the new typhoon should roar in on Manila late Tuesday, the weather bureau said.

Typhoon Trix devastated a wide strip of southern Luzon, destroyed Legaspi City, an east coast port of 80,000 population, and the smaller coconut port of Tabaco.

It left 500,000 persons homeless.

Clear skies and sunny weather Sunday were predicted today by the weatherman.

"The only threat of rain is in a storm that is heading south, away from here," he said. "As long as it holds its present course we'll have a nice week-end."

Temperatures will range between 44 and 58 degrees, he said, with a risk of light frost in low-lying areas.
